Tests to start soon for swine flu vaccine

by CHARLES S. TAYLOR

(First of a three-part series)

ATLANTA (UPI) — Field trials begin soon on a vaccine to inoculate millions of Americans against an expected fall epidemic of a potent new influenza strain health experts say may strike one-fourth of the population.

The new A-swine virus, a radically different type linked with viruses of the 1920s and 1930s, is expected to have an attack rate of 25 per cent, according to federal health experts. That percentage means that 50 to 60 million Americans may be targets of the disease.

Medical experts at the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said the new type of influenza could be similar to the strain that caused the 1918 pandemic, a modern-day plague that killed 21 million persons across the world and 548,000 in the United States.

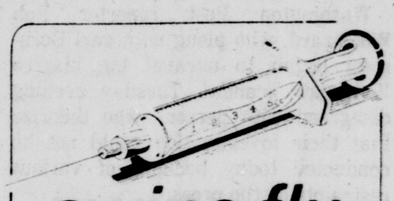

In an unprecedented move last month, President Ford, at the urging of the U.S. Public Health Service, asked Congress to appropriate $135 million to finance a nationwide mass immunization program. Congress quickly and overwhelmingly passed the measure and it is now on the President's desk to be signed into law. The money will pay for 200 million doses of flu vaccine.

IT HAS BEEN estimated that each shot will cost an additional 60 cents to $1, an expense that eventually will have to be born by the recipient of the vaccine, state or city governments or volunteer organizations.

Questions and answers about the flu — Page 6

Dr. Walter Dowdle, director of the CDC's virology division, said field trials of the vaccine will begin this month. The trials will involve several thousand persons in volunteer industrial groups, Dowdle said.

Researchers will check the volunteers closely for the degree of reaction to the shots and the buildup of antibodies that should occur within seven to 10 days after the vaccine is given. Antibodies are produced by the white blood cells, the blood's chemical soldiers that attack invading viruses.

Dr. David Sencer, director of the CDC, said it was hoped that 95 per cent of the American population will receive the vaccine in a three-month period beginning in September. However, vaccination of those in high risk groups, such as persons over 65 and those with respiratory and heart troubles, may start early this summer.

THE MASS immunization program will require virtual mobilization of government and volunteer health agencies. It will be the first time in history a nation has attempted to immunize an entire population against a major disease.

The planned inoculation program has encountered criticism from certain state health officials who have suggested that the vaccine be stockpiled in every state, but not administered until there is more evidence that an epidemic is indeed on the way. Sencer, Dowdle and other top-ranking federal health officials maintain that to wait until an outbreak is under way would be gambling with the nation's health.

The A-swine virus was first identified at Ft. Dix, N.J., last February. The illness hit at least 12 Army recruits, one of whom died. The CDC said evidence now shows the virus affected several hundred recruits.

The fact that the A-swine flu apparently has not spread beyond Ft. Dix led some medical authorities to believe that the new virus may be a medical oddity, posing no serious health threat. Sencer at several news conferences, has conceded this point. "There may well be no influena epidemic this fall," he said, adding that

One-third of residents victimized by vandals

by BILL HILL

The Arlington Heights zero-vandalism committee is now designing programs aimed at reducing vandalism, which survey projections indicate affected almost one-third of the village's residents in 1975.

Trustee Robert Miller, chairman of the committee, said the short-range programs now ready for implementation are basically intended to increase awareness among residents of the growing vandalism problem in Arlington Heights.

"We think this situation can be turned around if we can change the attitude of parents, kids and citizens. We hope to make them aware of the problem so they will change their attitudes," Miller said.

MILLER SAID records and interviews with local park, school and village officials indicate that vandalism is increasing.

Incomplete records show that in 1975 acts of vandalism at 28 Arlington Heights schools totaled more than $65,000 and park district vandalism totaled more than $6,000, Miller said.

The committee's report also shows that village property is hard-hit by vandals.

Within a six-month period, 620 streetlights had to be replaced in the Scarsdale subdivision at a cost of more than $2,000.

In 1975, 250 street signs were stolen or damaged, costing the village more than $8,000.

On a single night, 12 parking meters were damaged with repairs costing $1,800.

The brick wall around the public works property was vandalized 13 times.

The committee's projection that one-third of all village residents were affected by vandals in 1975 comes from a random sampling of village businesses and homeowners, Miller said. Of the 2,000 questionnaires sent out, more than 800 have been tabulated, he said.

THREE SHORT-TERM programs intended to increase awareness and combat vandalism are now being prepared by the zero-vandalism committee, Miller said. They are: a neighborhood watch program intended to persuade citizens to feel responsible for protecting their neighbors' property; a program to educate the public on police procedures and to persuade policemen to keep in touch with homeowners hit by vandals; and a community awareness program to keep residents informed on new pro-

Ford reveals $11,600 tax refund and income figures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford received a 1975 federal income tax refund of $11,631.07, a White House spokesman said Tuesday.

Ford's 1975 gross income was $251,991.24 and his federal taxes were $94,568.93 and his state and local taxes totaled $11,941.91, according to figures released by Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

Ford overpaid his federal taxes on his weekly federal pay check and paid a total of $106,200 in these withholding payments, Nessen said.

As a result, after filing his federal income tax returns for 1975 on April 1, he got a refund of $11,631.07.

The President underpaid his state and local taxes and ended up having to pay "several hundred dollars" more at year's end, Nessen said. Ford pays state taxes to Michigan, his home state.

Nessen said Ford's example of laying out his tax data should serve as a model for all presidential candidates.

Quick impact of housing ruling doubted for area

A Herald Staff report

The U. S. Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that federal courts can order federal funding of low-income housing in the suburbs to relieve inner city segregation, but government officials in the Northwest suburbs said the decision will not have an immediate impact on this area.

Chicago was the test case for the Supreme Court ruling, which may require planning of public housing on a metropolitan rather than a city basis. The court upheld an appeals court decision that any Chicago public housing plan should include adjacent suburbs.

The decision involved a lower court ruling which found that the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development had joined with the Chicago Housing Authority to knowingly limit funding of low-income housing to predominantly black areas, creating high-rise ghettos on the city's south and west sides.

AN ATTORNEY FOR HUD, whose appeal in the Chicago case was rejected, said the ruling is likely to spark lawsuits by minorities in metropolitan areas across the country.

Justice Potter Stewart wrote that if minorities can prove HUD cooperated with local officials to limit public housing to ghetto neighborhoods in violation of constitutional bars to race discrimination, a court can force HUD to fund low-income housing in the suburbs if that is the best remedy.

It was the first major race discrimination decision since 1974, when the court held that cross-district busing was impermissible to relieve inner-city school segregation in the North unless suburbs were proven guilty of intentional discrimination.

Henry Zuba, director of the Regional Housing Coalition in Chicago, said the ruling "is a strong statement that suburban communities must address the needs of low-income, minority people." The housing coalition has for three years advocated voluntary rather than forced minority housing plans for the suburbs.

MOUNT PROSPECT MAYOR Robert D. Teichert said most local officials involved in a coalition to develop housing programs in the Northwest suburbs anticipated this decision, "in spite of popular appeal not to get involved.

"Although it is a meaningful decision, it doesn't have any big immediate impact," Teichert said. "Two

O'HARE'S HANGARS — Out here in the Land of Bizarre Flying Monsters, there is employment for thousands.

But most jobs are very mundane, such as the work being done by dozens of nice young ladies who would rent you the automobiles off their lot.

Nobody else has anything quite like Jerry Bielke, who says emphatically, "If you refer to sex, I hate Ms! Although I'm divorced, I am Mrs. Bielke!"

She's no women's libber, either, just a girl tough enough to trail Henry Kissinger everywhere except the men's room and use a flash to photograph Prince Philip, even when all his aides have said that is a no-no.

Jerry is a living, breathing, joyous greeting card straight from the U.S. Air Force.

She's the military site hostess to presidents and kings, countesses and counts, princes from faraway places and one real nice lady . . . whom she calls "The sweetest, nicest doll" . . . Betty Ford.

"I'm not really given any special privileges," said Jerry. "I'm kept in the dark, too."

She's seen them all in 18 quick years, the world luminaries from Hirohito to Hussein, Sadat to Rabin, Prince Philip to Kissinger and every U.S. president since Eisenhower.

"When I came to Chicago, I'd seen one president in my life," said Jerry. "Since then, I've photographed five." Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford. All those men's pictures hang upon her office walls.

What it means is that Jerry shoots pictures. And hopes to the setting sun that she doesn't forget anyone.

"We're preparing for pandemonium," Jerry said. "There's going to be 187 foreign dignitaries transverse this field just in July. I didn't even know there were that many!"

THE JOB DOESN'T require it. Jerry could be just a civilian. But on this past April 12, she'd been 30 years in the U.S. Air Force.

Palatine boy hurt in car-bike mishap

A 13-year-old Palatine boy was seriously injured Tuesday morning when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a car on rain-slicked Quentin Road near Palatine Road. Palatine police said Mike E. Smith, 139 Maple Ct., was struck by a southbound car driven by a 16-year-old Palatine juvenile. Smith reportedly shot out from a driveway into three lanes of traffic. Firemen took him to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where he was reported in fair condition Tuesday night with contusions, a concussion and internal injuries. Police ticketed the driver for excessive speed.

Arlington youth feared dead

An 18-year-old Arlington Heights youth is missing and feared dead as the result of a canoeing accident Monday at Devil's Lake State Park in Sauk County, Wisconsin. John P. Furlong, 1003 N. Ridge Ave., was with two companions canoeing on the lake when the boat tipped over, spilling them into the 50-degree water, Butch Steinhorst, Sauk County Deputy Sheriff said. Steinhorst said the companions, whose names were not released, swam the 100 yards to shore, but Furlong, who reportedly could not swim, floundered in the 40-foot deep water and apparently drowned. Furlong was a senior at Arlington High School.

Many help blast victims

The American Red Cross, local businessmen and Palatine officials are helping residents of 16 blast-torn apartments return to normal lives. An explosion ripped apart the building at 440 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine, Monday and is still under investigation. "We're still working on it . . . Maybe by Thursday we'll have something. We have to work on it piece by piece," Fire Chief Orville Helms said Tuesday. A water heater is suspected as the cause of the blast. Policemen have been stationed at the building to prevent looters and Palatine Village Mgr. Anton Harwig said village employes have volunteered to assist the victims beyond their official requirements. Most residents of the apartment building have found shelter with relatives or friends, but those who didn't were provided with food and lodging by the American Red Cross.

Peskin appeals conviction

Former State Rep. Bernard Peskin, Northbrook, convicted of federal bribery charges two years ago for his role in the 1968 zoning scandal surrounding the Barrington Square complex in Hoffman Estates, has appealed his conviction to the U.S. Supreme Court. The move by Peskin, free pending the outcome of his appeals, is his last legal route to overturn his conviction and three-year prison sentence imposed by U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr. Peskin was convicted in 1974 on five counts of bribery and one count each of conspiracy and income tax evasion for funneling bribes from Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. to six Hoffman Estates officials to ensure zoning approval for K and B's Barrington Square complex. The six village officials were later convicted on bribery and income tax evasion charges and all were paroled after serving parts of their terms in federal prisons. K and B was fined $50,000 after pleading no contest to a federal indictment in connection with the case.

Watergate reporter Bob Woodward

Curbs on press can be overcome

by MIKE KLEIN

Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward, who along with carl Bernstein began to unravel the bizarre Watergate scandal, Tuesday evening disagreed with persons who theorize that their investigation could not be conducted today because of various restraints on the press.

"I still think if the White House was obstructing justice in some case, reporters could find ut and write it," Woodward said during an interview with a Herald reporter in his Chicago hotel room.

Woodward also touched upon:

• Criticism that their second book, "The Final Days," left untouched material about Richard Nixon's concern over finances plus his ability to initiate a worldwide conflict;

• Rather harsh excerpt treatment given "The Final Days" by Newsweek magazine, excerpts, incidentally, which Woodward and Bernstein approved; and,

• How he is not concerned about providing an appropriate "encore" after covering the most controversial news event in this century.

WOODWARD SAID he disagrees with persons who think the Watergate investigation would fail today.

"There have been court actions which have gone in the direction of restricting the press, but I don't think there has been anything of a serious enough nature to restrict it in practical terms," Woodward said.

He acknowledged, however, that major obstacles can still develop. Journalists have become frustrated by numerous "gag orders" abbreviating news coverage plus liberal interpretations of the new federal Privacy Act.

More serious, however, would be potential passage of Senate Bill 1 which could radically affect the coverage of national defense, limiting it without precedent.

IN PRESENT FORM, that bill could provide the death penalty for reporters who "communicated" national defense information which might aid foreign powers.

Woodward doubts the bill in present form will ever become law. He added, "I hope the test on espionage would be that it really does endanger the national security, not that the people in government perceive that it does.

"Take the Pentagon Papers; there was a great human cry that the national security was in danger," Woodward said.

"But as you read through the Pentagon Papers, when the government was pressed in court to find one lie, they did not cite a specific example."

WOODWARD SAID "The Final Days" did not touch upon Nixon's concern over his finances because, "We didn't have reliable sources that reached the level where we were absolutely sure in our reporting."

Another more important area left untouched was the alleged attempt by former Defense Sec. James Schlesinger to alter the chain of command so Nixon could not initiate a worldwide conflict.

Woodward said he and Bernstein were not totally convinced of that, despite interviewing nearly 400 persons for their sequel to "All the President's Men."

Newsweek magazine's excerpts of "The Final Days," roughly one-sixth of the book, dealt heavily with the sordid facts of Nixon's last hours. The book was thought, by some critics, to be slimy.

BUT UPON ITS release in total, reviews have been favorable and Woodward said, "That's the nature of excerpting. "It's news what the darker side of the Nixon-Kissinger relationship was. It's not news that there were positive aspects."

Woodward and Bernstein have not left their reporting duties at the Post. Nor do they have that goal.

"There's always a notion that you have to do something better or more dramatic or more colorful. But you don't," Woodward said.

"When you're a reporter, you like reporting. I like reporting. Carl likes reporting. We want to do it, care about it. The juices get going, no matter what the story."

Fulle appeals extortion conviction

Former Cook County Comr. Floyd Fulle has asked the U.S. Court of Appeals to reverse his corruption conviction and to order separate, new trials on perjury, extortion and income tax charges.

In an appeals brief filed April 13, Fulle charges that a denial of separate trials on each corruption charge and one-sided rulings that favored prosecutors by U.S. District Court Judge Bernard Decker denied him a fair trial.

Fulle, 666 Laurel, Des Plaines, was sentenced Dec. 9, 1975 to serve five years in prison for extorting an estimated $69,000 from two Northwest suburban apartment builders. The sentence followed convictions on extortion, tax fraud and perjury charges after a two-week jury trial.

Fulle, Maine Township Republican committeeman and former Cook County GOP chairman, is free pending the appeal. Fulle resigned the county board post after his conviction.

IN THE APPEALS brief, Fulle's attorneys argue that the charges of his extorting $10,000 from builder Thomas Origer in 1970; $20,000 from Sellergren Inc., in 1970 and his lying about the purchase price of a Florida vacation home are "different" and require separate trials.

"To defend at one trial against such an amalgamation was like a batter given one swing to hit multiple balls," the appeal states.

Fulle's attorneys charge that the government used zoning attorney Robert Haskins "as a stalking horse" to build up "a tale of massive payoffs."

Haskins, who was Origer's attorney, did not testify during the trial.

"Arbitrary" rulings by Decker hampered Fulle's defense because "he could not bring his public statements" about zoning votes before the jury, the brief states. Fulle did not testify in his defense.

Ford receives tax refund of $11,631.07

their tax returns until President Nixon did to respond to criticism that he paid too little taxes.

The Ford data released Tuesday included:

• Gross income: Ford earned $251,991.24 in 1975. This included $200,000 as salary, $50,000 in Presidential expenses and $1,991.24 in money earned from renting property, bank savings account interest and "a small amount" of stock dividends.

• Expenses: On the $50,000 expenses, Ford did not have to pay taxes on some $23,000 he itemized as business expenses. Nessen said most of this expense was the cost of buying and mailing his 1975 Christmas cards. The President had to pay taxes on the remaining $27,000.

• Deductions: Ford has a taxable income of $204,605.83. This was the figure once the gross income was cut by deductions that included $3,750 for personal exemptions, the $23,000 in itemized expenses $150 for medical care; $6,759.34 for such charity donations as money to the Boy Scouts and Red Cross and $1,087.39 for interest on small, nonmortgage personal loans.

The tax returns covered both the President and Mrs. Ford. Nessen said Ford also claimed deductions for three of his four children — sons Mike and Jack and daughter Susan.

He said Ford claimed no deduction for his youngest son Steve because the boy neither lives at home or is a full time student. Steve is studying and working at ranching in California.

The President paid taxes in 1975 at an overall rate of 42 per cent of his income, Nessen said. Ford's tax returns were prepared, as they have been in recent years, by his Grand Rapids, Mich., accountant, Ralph McBain, a Certified Public Accountant.

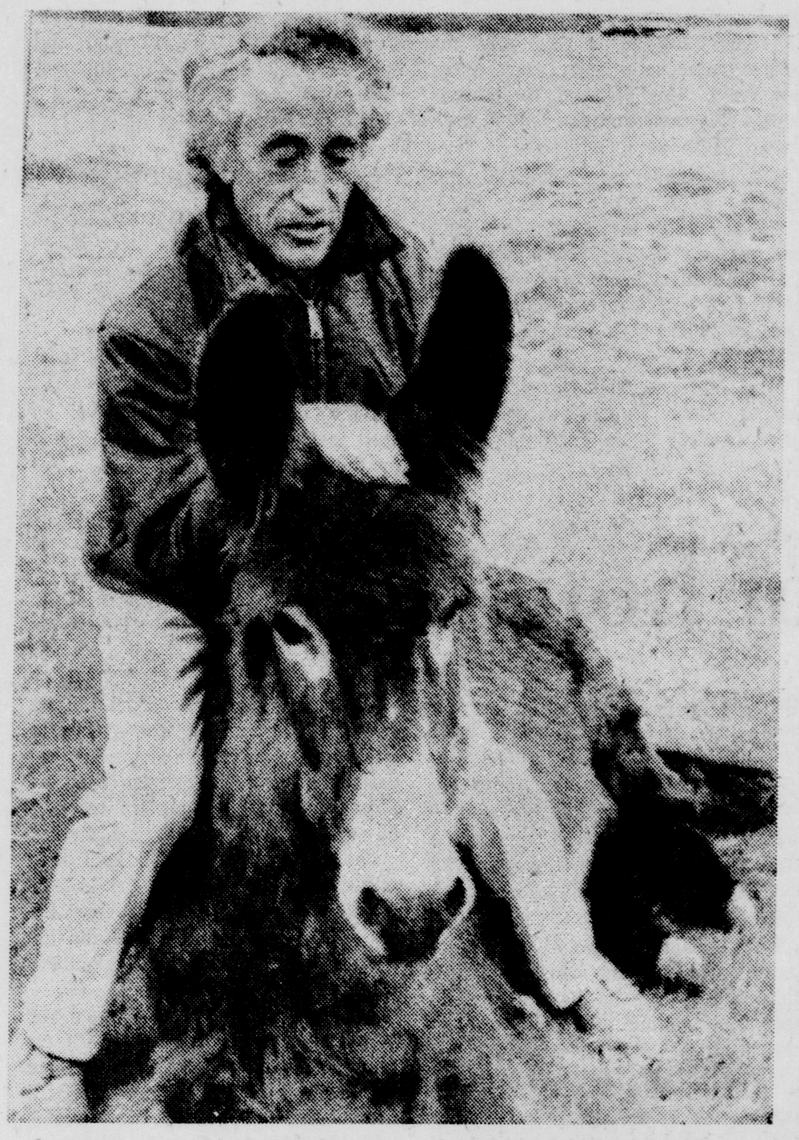

According to Nessen, Ford paid state and local taxes on property he owns in Michigan, in Alexandria, Va., where he owns the home he used in his congressional and vice presidential days, and in Vail, Colo., where he owns a ski lodge condominium.

According to figures released by the White House, 1975 — his first full year as President — gave Ford his lifetime's greatest income so far. In 1974, during which he served less than five months as President, he earned $147,683.10.

In 1973, he earned $92,745.40; in 1972, $67,927; in 1971, $71,114.58; in 1968, $68,952.43; in 1967, $71,608.55, and 196i, $68,952.43; in 1967, $71,608.55, and in 1966, $59,513.65.

In protest of West Bank march

Arabs, Israeli troops clash again

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli troops used gunfire to disperse rock-throwing Arab demonstrators in two West Bank towns in the third day of widespread protests against a mass march in support of Jewish settlement of occupied territory.

Club-swinging soldiers also broke up a demonstration of high school students outside the walled Old City of Jerusalem.

Military sources said the troops wounded two Arabs in Nablus and made several arrests after firing in the air in Tulkarm, where demonstrators blocked roads with burning tires, hoisted Palestine Liberation Organization flags and threw stones.

Witnesses said girls in the crowd near Herod's Gate leading to Old Jerusalem joined in the stone-throwing and waved wreaths in memory of three Arabs who died in earlier rioting on the West Bank.

They broke windows of a police car and a number of policemen were hurt, none seriously.

Police dispersed the youths in less than an hour and tourist traffic resumed through the gate leading to the Holy Sepulchre and other Christian, Moslem and Jewish holy sites in the old city.

There also were demonstrations in Jenin in the northern part of the West Bank, but quiet returned to the region in the afternoon.

The government has refused to go along with demands of the nationalistic Gush Emunim movement to approve widescale settlement in the territory, but has initiated a number of new towns at strategic points along the Jordan River.

In Lebanon, meantime, Syria called in Palestine Liberation Army troops to enforce a new cease-fire shaken by gunbattles and reports of a massacre of Moslems by Christians.

Leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt accused holdout Christian President Suleiman Franjieh of having no intention of resigning and threatened to seize power "over all Lebanon."

The PLA troops moved into the area where the joint Syrian-Lebanese-Palestinian truce committee met on the "green line" dividing the Moslem and Christian sectors of Beirut.

Political sources said the Syrians planned to use other PLA units to act as a buffer between leftist and rightist gunmen in the worst suburban trouble spots and in downtown battle zones.

The troops would take up position Wednesday, the sources said.

An estimated 6,000 PLA troops are in Lebanon with another 5,000 pro-Syrian guerrillas of the Saiqa organization. The Syrians also have about 8,000 regular troops strung along the border controlling strategic access routes.

Fighting took a new turn Tuesday in south Lebanon, where rebel army units reported they were attacked by Israeli artillery fire.

A spokesman for the Lebanese Arab Army said six 155-mm shells hit the village of Arnoun, killing one leftist militiaman and damaging several houses.

In another incident, Australian-born journalist Gerald Utting of the Toronto Star of Canada was believed kidnaped on the road from the city to the airport.

ISRAELI TROOPS extinguish a burning tire barricade and impose a curfew after rock-throwing incidents Tuesday. Arabs clashed with the troops in a third day of protests against a West Bank march.

U.S. is seeking to satisfy Castro's 'ifs'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ignoring Fidel Castro's insult of President Ford, U.S. officials said Tuesday the FBI is investigating an international incident which led Castro to threaten cancellation of the U.S.-Cuban antihijacking pact.

White House and State Department officials — in effect meeting Castro's condition for keeping the agreement alive — said the government will prosecute those who attacked two Cuban fishing trawlers if they launched the raid from U.S. territory.

Two Miami-based Cuban emigre organizations have claimed credit for the April 8 machine gun attack that sank one Cuban trawler, damaged another and killed one Cuban fisherman in international waters between Cuba and the United States.

At a Havana rally marking the 15th anniversary of the Bay of Pigs invasion, Castro Monday called Ford "a vulgar liar" for saying Cuban troops fought in Angola at Soviet instigation and said such comments created an inflammatory atmosphere which encourages incidents like the trawler attacks.

"If such events do not stop," the Cuban premier said, "if its authors are not given exemplary punishment, it will mean the end of (the 1973 hijacking) agreement."

That pact was the one major breakthrough in 16 years of hostile Cuban-American relations and U.S. officials made clear Washington will try to keep it in force by satisfying Castro's "ifs."

"As far as we are concerned, the United States will continue to live up to the antihijacking agreement . . . and we expect the Cubans to live up to the agreement," White House press secretary Ron Nessen told reporters.

He declined any comment on Castro's "vulgar liar" remark.

Both Nessen and State Department spokesman John Trattner said the government is investigating the trawler incident and will prosecute if U.S. laws were violated — that is, if the attackers came from U.S. territory. Otherwise, legal experts said, U.S. law would have no jurisdiction over an incident in international waters.

Trattner, however, rejected Castro's claim that Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger provoked the attack by their recent criticisms of Cuba.

"We emphatically deny any statements by U.S. officials led to these events," Trattner said. "We deplore acts of violence."

The antihijacking agreement, a five-year pact that may be cancelled by either party on six months notice, aims mainly at hijackers who divert U.S. aircraft to Cuba and seemed a major gesture of concilation by Castro.

Ex-Marines describe recruit's death

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Two former Marines say they "just went crazy" in fatally beating a fellow recruit during training exercises at the San Diego Marine Recruit depot.

After the beating, Dec. 6, Lynn McClure, 20, lapsed into a coma, and died March 13.

An attorney representing McClure's family Monday released taped interviews with the two recruits he said had participated in the incident.

Atty. John Gyorkos said the two former Marines were among four or five who beat McClure with pugil sticks — padded poles used to simulate bayonet fighting, instill aggressive behavior and for disciplinary measures.

One of the participants said McClure screamed "God, no, please, what did I do?" The other said: "We were like animals. We got out there for blood with pugil sticks and just went crazy."

McClure's mother and stepfather, Hubert and Betty Calhoun of Lufkin, Tex., have filed a $3.5 million wrongful death claim against the Marine Corps. A family relative said McClure was mentally retarded.

"He was not violent, though," said what other boys his age knew."

The Marine Corps is investigating the relative. "He just did not know the incident.

The two recruits, who Gyorkos refused to identify, said a drill instructor encouraged the attack, even after the 5 foot, six, 115 pound McClure begged for help, by shouting, "Kill, kill." The drill instructor was not identified.

Allegheny jet takes evasive action

An Allegheny Airlines jetliner was forced to take evasive action over Long Island Tuesday to avoid an in-flight collision with a single-engine private plane, an airline spokesman said. One passenger aboard the British-built BAC111 twin-jet en route from Washington to Boston was injured slightly when the Allegheny plane pulled up sharply to avoid the small plane "on a course right across the path" of the jetliner, David Shipley, an Allegheny spokesman in Washington, said. The Federal Aviation Administration said the closest the two airplanes came to each other was about 300 feet horizontally and 150 feet vertically.

Pan Am denied $194 million subsidy

The Civil aeronautics Board Tuesday turned down a request from Pan American World Airways for a $194 million annual government subsidy. The board said Pan Am appears to be shaking off its financial troubles and cannot qualify for a renewed subsidy for carrying the U. S. mail. The last year in which Pan Am received such a subsidy was 1958. Pan Am asked the CAB in 1974 for both temporary and permanent subsidies to help solve serious financial problems.

Soliah judge denies Patty hearing issue

A federal judge Tuesday denied a defense request for a hearing to learn what Patricia Hearst told investigators about the alleged role of Steven Soliah, her former lover, in a fatal bank robbery. U.S. District Court Judge Philip C. Wilkins said U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes "is legally able to present his case as he sees it and is not bound to believe anything said by Miss Hearst." Miss Hearst reportedly has told investigators Soliah, who shared her San Francisco apartment at the time of her arrest, was not in the bank.

Electrical workers open GE pact talks

Electrical workers Tuesday opened trend-setting national contract negotiations with the General Electric Co., the first stage of a coordinated bargaining effort in the industry. Union leaders called for substantial wage and fringe benefit increases from GE to match improved company profits. The GE talks affect about 125,000 workers whose contract expires June 27.

Communist party holds Portugal rally

Tens of thousands of chanting Communist supporters jammed Lisbon's First of May soccer stadium Tuesday night for what the party billed as its last campaign rally before Portugal's legislative elections Sunday. Party chief Alvaro Cunhal presided at the stadium, studded with red flags bearing the hammer and sickle emblem. The crowd called for a "majority of the left" and shouted "Down with reactionaries!"

At least 10 die in New Delhi riots

At least 10 persons were killed in squatters' riots at a slum where officials moved in with bulldozers, sparking the first major outbreak of violence in New Delhi since the declaration of a state of emergency last June, sources said Tuesday. One estimate placed the number of policemen killed at 20-30. The witnesses said police opened fire with automatic weapons. They said officials who demolished the flimsy wooden shacks offered to relocate the squatters in new homes only if they agreed to be sterilized.

Timothy Leary is granted parole in marijuana case

• Timothy Leary, once self-proclaimed high priest of the drug culture, Tuesday was granted a parole from a 10-year prison term for bringing marijuana into the United States. The decision by the full U.S. Parole Board, effective June 7, overturns an earlier vote denying the former Harvard psychologist's request to be released. Leary, 55, was sentenced by a federal court in Texas in 1970 on a charge of transporting marijuana. He is now confined to the Metropolitan Correctional Center in San Diego.

"They couldn't have really meant anything," said Detective Chief Ralph Degenhart. "If they were still playing in the bank parking lot when police got there."

Village doubles worker figure for funds from HUD

In an attempt to qualify for $134,000 in community development funds, Arlington Heights officials have nearly doubled the projections on the number of workers who would live in the village if subsidized housing was available.

The figure was increased from 267 to 507 in the village's housing assistance plan filed with the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

The change was made in response to a notice from HUD that the 267 figure was reason for "potential disapproval" of the village's application for community development funds.

THE BOARD approved the change Monday by a 4-to-2 vote, but directed the administration to appeal HUD's directive in hopes of gaining acceptance of the 267 figure, which was based on a survey of local businesses.

The housing goal to provide 125 units of low-and moderate-income housing in each of the next three years was not changed.

The changes were supported by Village Pres. James T. Ryan and trustees Frank Palmatier, Madeline Schroeder and Alfred Barboro. The changes were opposed by trustees Robert Miller and August Bettman. Trustees Richard Durava and O. V. Anderson left before the vote was taken.

"They (HUD) took issue with our figure of 267, basically because of the construction of our questionnaire and the conduct of our survey," James Holzwart, administrative assistant, said. "They said the sample of individuals surveyed was unrepresentative."

THE 507 FIGURE was determined by a formula used by HUD that is applicable to all communities, Holzwart said.

"They prefer that we use their formula because they think it will stand up in court more effectively. They are less concerned with the figures than the procedure we used. They want it to stand up in court," Holzwart said.

The Village of Arlington Heights will base its appeal to the 507 figure on the principle that a local survey more accurately reflects the needs of the community, he said.

Board members who approved the changes in the housing assistance plan agreed that they were "not significant" changes, but Miller and Bettman said the alterations confirmed their fears that HUD "makes up the rules as they go along."

Miller called it an example of "big government telling you what numbers to put down based on some national average."

"I'M NOT AGAINST us having a housing plan, but I want it to be based on figures we know are valid so people in the community won't question them. I'm opposed to putting down projections that don't mean anything," Miller said.

Bettman said he considered the changes "significant."

"It just points to the fear some of us had that the housing assistance plan would be altered. I'm ery concerned about how many more times it will be changed before it is accepted," Bettman said.

Mrs. Schroeder said she did not object to the new figures because "they were so close to the final tally from the local survey."

She said she expected HUD to become "hard-nosed" with the applications for community development funds because of a recent ruling by a federal judge that blocked HUD from giving $4.5 million to seven Hartford, Conn. relatively affluent suburbs. The judge ruled that the applications must include specific projectons on how many low-income residents they expected to move into their communities.

If the Arlington Heights application for community development funds is approved, the village will receive $134,000 this year and will be eligible to apply for $295,000 next year and more than $400,000 in each of the next three years.

18-year-old feared drowned in lake

An 18-year-old senior at Arlington High School is believed drowned in a holiday canoeing accident Monday at Devil's Lake State Park, Wis.

Missing and feared dead is John P. Furlong, 1003 N. Ridge Ave., Arlington Heights.

Furlong and two companions were canoeing on the lake when the boat tipped over, spilling them into the 50-degree water, said Butch Steinhorst, Sauk County deputy sheriff.

The companions, whose names were not released, swam the 100 yards to shore, authorities said, but Furlong, who reportedly could not swim, floundered in the 40-foot deep water and sank from sight.

John Furlong

A SEARCH, involving boats and divers, was mounted immediately but without results, according to reports.

The search, with additional divers from Madison, Wis., called in, was resumed Tuesday. It was called off late in the afternoon as overcast skies and rain hampered their efforts.

The youths, on Easter vacation, had a campsite at the park near Baraboo, Wis., about 200 miles from Chicago, Deputy Steinhorst said.

The park is a popular "get-away" place for youngsters, Steinhorst and park officials said. The late Easter and warm weather have increased the size of the holiday crowds there, they said.

Steinhorst said the search is scheduled to resume today. He said a coroner's inquest may be held after the body is recovered.

Officials said Furlong's was the first report of a drowning of the year at the mile-long lake.

years ago it would have been traumatic."

Michael Richardson, director of planning and zoning for Des Plaines, said the decision was inevitable but "how and when it will be implementee will be a whole other thing."

Richardson said he believes the federal government will have to prove discrimination exists before it can order low or moderate income housing to be built.

"I WOULD SUSPECT it would be difficult for the federal government to prove that," Richardson said.

Wendell Jones, Palatine village president, said most people in Palatine oppose low-income housing being located in Palatine because it most frequently means high-rise apartments.

"We don't want to replicate the problems of Chicago here in Palatine," Jones said.

Jones said the low-income housing issue "is not one of race but one of logic, that is how many people can live together all the time so closely associated.

"We're not going to sit still for court-imposed housing which will interfere with our local zoning and density requirements and ordinances," Jones said.

LOW-INCOME HOUSING in the suburbs is "an emotional and controversial subject that won't be solved in the immediate future, court orders or not," Jones said. "It will be a long time before it gets to Palatine."

Mrs. Pat Gardner, a member of the Arlington Heights Housing Commission, agreed with the court's decision. "I don't know why low-and moderate-income housing should only be in the inner city. It should be everywhere. But it shouldn't just be in one suburb. It should be in all with each taking a fair share," she said.

Cathy Duoba, chairman of the Elk Grove Village Housing Commission, said people still don't realize that they will have to act locally to provide low-income housing or it will be forced on them.

"I was happy (with the decision) because I believe the case was right, but I was unhappy because I've been working for six years to make it unnecessary for the supreme court to have to rule on such a case," Mrs. Duoba said. "Planning is supposed to be done on a local level, where it is most effective."

Officials from Hoffman Estates and Buffalo Grove said they have already been studying housing needs in their communities.

PEGGIE ELGIN, HOFFMAN Estates Housing Commission chairman, said "We're way ahead of most other communities in housing study. If all communities would do what we've been doing for the past year, I think we would be considering needs on a metropolitan basis, as well as a community basis," Mrs. Elgin said.

Mrs. Elgin said the supreme court decision means that communities will be taking a closer look at the local housing needs of not only people who live in the town, but also those who work in their town and live elsewhere.

In Buffalo Grove, the village staff is currently working on a low-income housing report, said Village Pres. Edward Fabish.

Fabish said the two biggest problems for low income housing in Buffalo Grove are the lack of public transportation and the lack of employment nearby.

"GETTING SOMEONE INTO a suburb is only half the battle," Fabish said. "It's not as much a question of discrimination as economic sense — I don't think we have any homes in this village less than $40,000."

Tuesday's supreme court ruling should not affect the Arlington Heights-St. Viator low-income housing case, "but Arlington Heights must realize it will be made part of an overall regional housing plan," said Zuba.

The supreme court will hear oral arguments in October in the Lincoln Green low-income housing case between the Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. (MHDC).

Arlington Heights has blocked the 190-unit townhouse proposal with arguments that it violates the village comprehensive zoning plans. MHDC has won an appellate court ruling with the argument that the village refusal to rezone the 15-acre parcel south of St. Viator High School is racially disciminatory.

grams and their impact.

The committee is also studying ways of increasing the number of juvenile convictions in vandalism cases. In 1975 there were 1,633 juvenile arrests in Arlington Heights, but less than 10 per cent appeared in court on the charges and only five persons served any type of detention sentence, Miller said.

A long-term program being planned by the zero-vandalism committee is a "court watch."

"It will be an accountability session for judges to keep track of those who are lenient. We will keep an eye on them and protest the lack of court action when necessary," Miller said.

Other long-term projects the committee plans to initiate are: revised laws and ordinances, educational programs through the schools, leisure-time activities for youths, and the pursuit of federal and state grants available to fund anti-vandalism programs.

To reassure businessmen, dentist urges:

'Buy land north of the railroad'

A north side downtown businessman Tuesday night asked the special Arlington Heights downtown improvements committee to recommend the village acquire land on the north side of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks, to give businessmen some assurance that a parking garage will be built there.

Frank J. Psota, a dentist on the north side, asked the committee for "more than lip service" in assuring the north side will get its share of downtown improvements.

Psota and several other north side businessmen have been skeptical of the committee's plan to build a 500-car parking garage on each side of the railroad tracks because the first one has been designated for the south side at the corner of Vail Avenue and Sigwalt Street.

"I'M NOT AGAINST your garage, but in no way will that garage on the south side help me over on the north side. The village has no lots on the north side and I don't see you getting a garage built on the north side in 10 years, if ever," Psota said.

"Why don't you buy a lot over there (on the north side)," he said.

North side businessmen would become more cooperative with the committee if land was acquired on the north side, Mrs. Psota said.

The committee did not promise land would be acquired on the north side, but Trustee August Bettman, chairman of the committee, said both segments of the business district would be treated equally in the committee's recommendations.

WHATEVER WE DO, it should benefit both sides. I have no favorites on either side. To me, you're all one," he said.

The committee made no specific recommendations Tuesday night for improving the central business district, but it did uphold the recommendation it drafted at its last meeting to build the two garages simultaneously.

Bettman, chairman of the committee, had asked the committee to reconsider that recommendation, saying he doubted whether residents or the village board would approve of building a second garage before the first one proved successful.

Among those supporting the simultaneous construction of the two garages was Myles Gordon, who argued that both sides should be "treated equally."

Earl Johnson, executive manager of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, agreed, saying, "We have to maintain a balance between the north side and the south side. We have to show our intent to treat both sides equally."

The committee also agreed to invite representatives of the Oak Park Development Corp. to their next meeting to explain how downtown improvements were made there.

$414,696 town budget gets early OK

The Wheeling Township Board of Auditors Tuesday tentatively approved a town budget for 1976-77 of $414,696, $36,193 more than last year's budget,that includes two days of additional bus service for senior citizens in the township.

Of last year's appropriated budget, $378,503, only $247,084 was actually spent.

A public hearing on the proposed town budget will be held at 7:30 p.m. May 27 at the town hall, 1818 W. Northwest Hwy.

MAJOR INCREASES in next year's proposed budget include $40,000 for social services for the poor and aged. Most of that will finance seven-day bus service for seniors. Bus service is now offered seven hours a day Monday through Friday with reserved seating Tuesday and Thursday on Dial-a-Bus.

At a meeting earlier this month, the auditors had asked Suburban Shuttle of Rolling Meadows, which leases a bus and its driver to the township for a breakdown of the bus service's $75-a-day cost.

Robert Huffman of Suburban Shuttle wrote the board that $50 a day finances wages and administrative costs, $4.50 for radio, $5 for maintenance, $5.50 for insurance and $10.72 for depreciation of equipment.

Township assessor Marshall Theroux said the additional $36,000 in the proposed budget would not come from an increased tax rate, but rather from increased assessments of property values.

THE TOWNSHIP'S 1974 assessment, which is the most recent known assessment, was $575 million. Theroux estimated that assessment may increase $50 million to $625 million. The 1974 tax rate of 6.6 cents per $100 assessed valuation would remain about the same, he said.

Other major increases in the proposed town budget include $30,000 for building and permanent improvements,with an estimated $16,000 for carpeting the new town hall at 1616 N. Arlington Heights Rd., $12,000 for the new building's draperies and $2,000 for appliances.

Another proposed increase is $3,300 for a new township supervisor's car. The current car, a 1972 model, has been estimated to bring $900 in a trade-in.

Flu vaccine testing to begin soon

Some facts about swine flu virus

ATLANTA (UPI) — This summer, a massive nationwide program will begin to inoculate most of the American population against a new and potentially dangerous strain of influenza caused by the A-swine virus.

The following questions and answers about influenza were prepared by some of the top medical scientists at the National Center for Disease Control. They include Dr. David Sencer, director of the CDC, Dr. Michael Gregg, director of the CDC's viral disease division, and Dr. Walter Dowdle, director of the virology division.

What is the significance of the swine flu virus?

The virus which causes influenza in man is constantly changing. Most of these changes are minor. Once every 10 years or so the change is more dramatic, and this is when we have extensive outbreaks such as the pandemic of Asian flu of 1957 and the Hong Kong flu of 1968. The newly identified swine-like virus represents a major change from viruses which are currently circulating in the human population. Since it has the capacity to spread from person-to-person, it could develop into a pandemic strain and cause extensive illness and death.

When was it first identified?

In February 1976, a new strain of human influenza virus, designated A-New Jersey-76 . . . was isolated during an outbreak of respiratory disease among recruits at Ft. Dix, N.J. Although an influenza virus of swine has been known as the cause of illnes in swine for many years, the Ft. Dix outbreak is the first known example in the United States since about 1930 of person-to-person transmission of a human influenza virus related to that of swine.

What relationship does this swine-like virus have to the 1918 influenza pandemic?

Influenza viruses were first isolated from man in the early 1930s. We can only speculate about the characteristics of the viruses prevalent before that time. Testing of blood of individuals who were living in 1918 shows almost all hav antibodies to swine-like virus. This suggests that a virus of this sort may have caused the 1918 pandemic. Such antibodies are also found in many persons over the age of 50, suggesting that a swine-like virus was widespread in human populations perhaps up to 1930. There is, however, no evidence to indicate that the virus recently identified at Ft. Dix has the same characteristics of virulence as the 1918 virus.

How was the 1918 influenza pandemic different from other influenza pandemics?

It was unique because of its high mortality, and the fact that so many of the fatalities occurred among apparently healthy young men and women. It is estimated that the 1918-19 pandemic resulted in a world-wide death toll of more tha 20 million, with a half million of the fatalities in this country. By comparison the Asian flu of 1957 — the most severe influenza pandemic since — caused an estimated 70,000 deaths, primarily among the elderly or individuals with chronic illness.

What has been found in the investigation of the extent of human influenza caused by the swine-like virus?

It has been demonstrated that the initial outbreak of swine influenza at Ft. Dix was fairly extensive. Although only 12 cases have been confirmed, blood testing has indicated that several hundred recruits were probably infected during this outbreak. No spread to the nearby civilian New Jersey population has been demonstrated.

Is there a treatment for swine influenza?

As with other strains of influenza, there is no specific treatment. Science has, however, given us the ability to significantly blunt the impact of this disease. Vaccines — not available in 1918 — are now an effective way to prevent the disease. Antibiotics, also unavailable in 1918, are important in treating the complications of influenza and thus reducing fatalities.

How effective would a vaccine be against influenza caused by the swine-like virus?

Flu vaccines in the past have been variably effective, depending primarily on how closely they match the strain of influenza. Significant progress has been made in recent years. Today's vaccines are more potent, purer, and produce a higher degree of protection with fewer reactions. It is generally believed that effectiveness ranges somewhere between 70-90 per cent.

How would you go about immunizing more than 200 million Americans?

The goal would be to immunize the population in a three-month period — September through November 1976. The nation has never attempted an immunization program of such scope and intensity. It would require a major effort by both the public and private sectors. Essentially, the plan would rely on the federal government for its purchasing power, technical leadership, and coordination through the Center for Disease Control; on state health agencies for their experience in conducting systematic immunization progrmas; and on the private health care sector for its extensive medical and other health-related resources. The strategy would be to tailor the approach to the opportunity and need — using mass immunization techniques where appropriate, but also using delivery points already in place, such as physicians' offices, health department clinics, and community health centers.

What is influenza and how is it spread?

Influenza is a respiratory disease caused bys virus. When a person has influenza, or is just coming down with it, the fluids in his nose and mouth contain viruses. They are expelled into the air when he sneezes, coughs, or talks. Then they get into the noses and mouths of other people and cause disease.

How serious a disease is influenza?

For most people, influenza is a moderately severe illness but not a serious health threat. Complete recovery can be expected within a week. For certain high-risk groups it is a serious problem, and the disease or its complications may be life threatening.

What are the symptoms of influenza?

Symptoms of influenza often come on suddenly and may include some or all of the following: fever, chills, headache, dry cough, and soreness and aching of the back and the limbs. Fever seldom lasts more than several days, although the patient may continue to feel weakened for several days to a week or more.

How rapidly did the 1957-58 pandemic of Asian flu spread, and how many people were afflicted with the disease?

Beginning in central China in February 1957, the Asian strain of influenza virus rapidly spread to Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore, and neighboring countries. By June, reports of influenza-like illness came from Czech oslovakia, The Netherlands, England, the United States, and the Mideast. In the United States, the West Coast was involved first with an outbreak beginning in June. The epidemic reached its peak in late October. A second wave of deaths peaked in late February 1958, but epidemics had greatly decreased in frequency by then. In the U.S. the fall and winter waves are thought to have caused nearly 70,000 deaths. It is estimated that about 45 million cases of influenza occurred in this country during the fall of 1957.

What about the spread of the Hong Kong strain?

The first recorded epidemic of this pandemic strain occurred in Hong Kong in July 1968. It spread rapidly to the Far East, India and northern Australia by early fall. Despite documented introductions of this strain into many parts of the world, only the United States reported major nationwide epidemics for the fall and winter of 1968-69. It was a year before Europe, Northern Asia, and many other parts of the world were to feel the full effect of pandemic Hong Kong influenza. In the United States, the first outbreaks in the civilian population developed in Puerto Rico and Alaska in late September and early October. By December 28 influenza outbreaks had involved all 50 states. An estimated 27,900 deaths were caused by the 1968-69 Hong Kong epidemic in the United States. Approximately 50 million persons in this country were affected by this disease. The cost to the nation for this one epidemic year has been estimated at $3.8 billion dollars.

the mass immuniation program was a necessary form of insurance.

HE SAID the Hong Kong influenza epidemic of 1968-69 cost the nation an estimated $3.8 billion dollars, far more than the total expense of the planned inoculation project.

Some state health officials warned at a recent CDC meeting that severe reactions were likely to occur when the vaccine is given, causing millions to become ill unnecessarily. But Dowdle said the single-strain swine flu vaccine to be given the general population will not contain as many protective units as current two-strain flu vaccines and should be less likely to cause side effects.

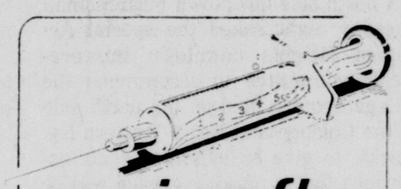

He said the swine flu vaccine, estimated to be 70-90 per cent effective, also will not contain any units to protect against the B-type influenza, further reducing the risk of side effects.

Dowdle said the possibility had been discussed that persons getting a flue shot for the first time may have a particularly bad reaction. But he said such reactions may be associated more with a person's age than with the response to a first-time vaccine.

CDC INVESTIGATORS have taken hundreds of blood samples across the country in a continuing search for any additional outbreaks of the swine influenza. They discovered that approximately 80 per cent of the people over the age of 50 have swine-like virus anti bodies, or a degree of natural protection. Dowdle said that while these older persons would have some natural resistance to the new type influenza, they also would be more susceptible to the complications of influenza.

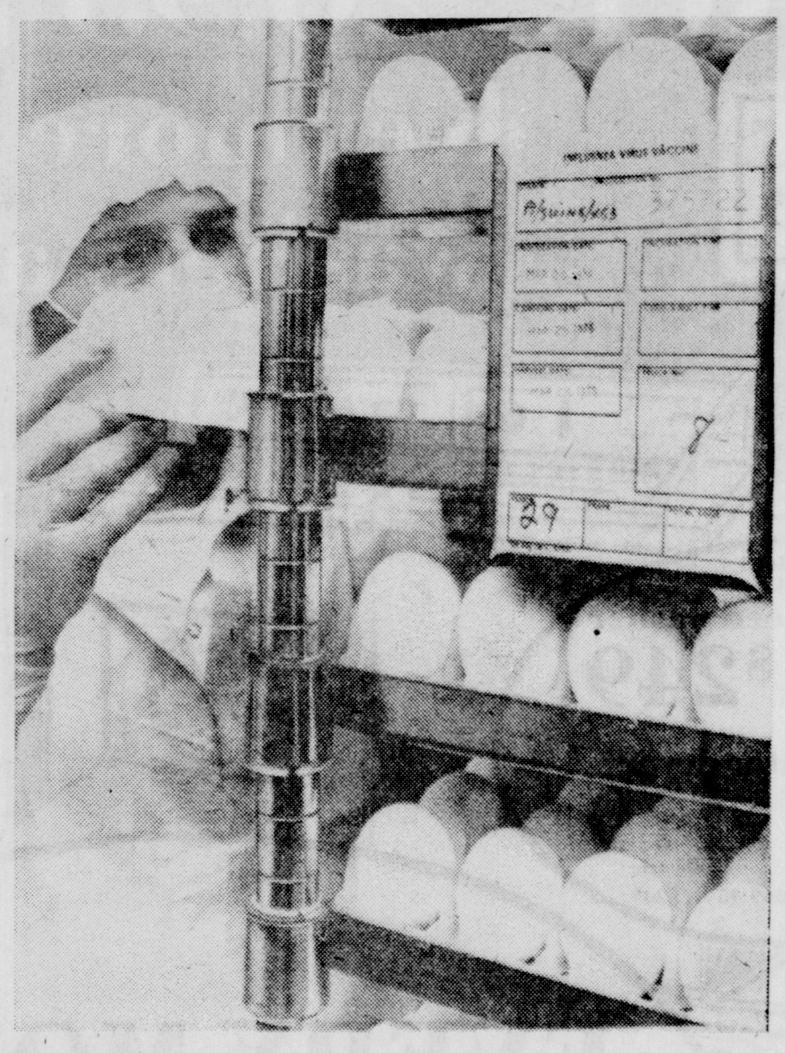

The United States has experienced two major influenza epidemics in the past 20 years. The Asian flu, spawned in central China in February 1957, rapidly spread to Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore, and neighboring countries. That summer it reached Europe and the United States. The estimated death toll in this country was 70,000, with 45 million cases of influenza.

Following its usual 8-10 year cycle, the next major flu panademic occurred in Hong Kong in July 1968. It reached this country the following September. Because of its July start and its rapid movement, there was no time for production of a vaccine before the beginning of the flu season in the United States. As a consequence, some 50 million Americans came down with the disease and there were approximately 27,900 deaths.

Joint fund-raising dinner proposed

Howlett asks peace treaty with Walker

by WANDALYN RICE

Sec. of State Michael Howlett and Gov. Daniel Walker will try to patch up the wounds left by the March 16 primary contest in a personal meeting within the next week.

Aides for both men said the time for the meeting has not yet been set, but Howlett aides confirmed the secretary of state personally called Walker recently to propose the meeting.

Suggestions that Howlett might offer to pay Walker's campaign debts in exchange for the goveror's endorsement in the November election were called "speculation" by one Howlett aide.

"HOWELTT IS willing to support a fund-raising dinner that would benefit both of them and the Democratic Party," the aide, who asked not to be identified said.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER the primary, Walker refused to say whether he would endorse Howlett, Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson or field a third party to continue to run for reelection.

However, Howlett aides suggested that Walker has now decided to become more cordial to his former opponent in order to set himself up for a run against Republican Sen. Charles Percy in 1978.

Top Walker aides were unavailable for comment on that possibility Tuesday, but officials in Walker's administration have in the past speculated that Percy's seat might be a logical next step for the defeated governor.

HOWLETT HAS indicated he will not resume an active campaign schedule until after the Democratic National Convention this summer, despite the fact Thompson is keeping up a campaign schedule almost as active as the one he had before the primary.

Howlett aides said the fact he has made the overture to Walker is expected to dispel persistent rumors he will quit the party's ticket and let State Treasurer Alan Dixon take over the run for governor.

The rumor, which has been denied consistently by Howlett aides, has surfaced almost once a week among political observers since the March 16 primary.

State calls for motorcycle training

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation Tuesday said it is proposing a "driver's training" program for motorcycle riders as an alternative to requiring cyclists to wear helmets.

"Motorcycle helmets are effective in preventing and reducing certain kinds of injuries," said Karsten Vieg, DOT safety director. "Helmets, however, do nothing to prevent accidents."

Vieg said the motorcycle driver education program is aimed at reducing accidents and fatalities among beginning cyclists, since that group has the highest accident rate.

The comprehensive safety program calls for $424,000 in federal and state funds to pay for instruction of beginning cyclists, rental of riding facilities and insurance.

Vieg estimated it would take three years to implement the program, which would then reach one-third to one-half of the state's novice motorcycle operators.

Illinois was cited by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration last year for failing to enact a mandatory helmet law for motorcycle riders, and was threatened with loss of federal highway funds. The federal requirement has since been dropped, Vieg said.

Illinois briefs

Lindberg predicts deficit

State Comptroller George W. Lindberg said Tuesday Illinois will spend most of fiscal 1977 in the red if Gov. Daniel Walker's spending and income estimates are off $50 million each and his proposals to speed up sales and income tax collections are not enacted.

Lindberg, in his monthly report on the state's fiscal condition, based his warning on a gloomy economic forecast in which none of Walker's hopes for a balanced budget in fiscal 1977 materialize.

Walker says Illinois can finish fiscal 1977 with a balance of $181 million if tax collections are hurried along and his spending and revenue estimates are on target.

However, Lindberg warned, an estimating error of only 1 per cent ($50 million) in revenues and spending "could plunge the state's operating fund balance to zero by October."

And if Walker's stepped-up tax collection plan is stalled in the legislature, Lindberg said, the state would be in the red from sometime this fall until next spring when income tax revenues roll in.

Cattle suffer TB outbreak

An Illinois Dept. of Agriculture official said Tuesday that some 114 head of dairy cattle in McHenry County, diseased with bovine tuberculosis, have already been slaughtered and about 114 more will be slaughtered as soon as possible.

The outbreak began in February when a dairy cow slaughtered in Wisconsin was found to be a TB reactor and was traced back to Woodstock, Ill., in McHenry County, said Dr. Paul Spencer, chief veterinarian of the Bureau of Animal Health at the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture.

Three additional herds were also tested and found to be infected with TB. Those herds were also killed, he said. TB reactors have now been found in a total of 22 herds, which cover almost the entire McHenry County area, he added.

Dooley found court winner

The State Board of Elections' official judicial canvass, released Tuesday, shows that Chicago attorney James A. Dooley defeated Cook County Circuit Court Judge Joseph A. Power by more than 29,000 votes in a hotly-contested race for the Democratic state supreme court nomination.

Dooley had contested some 80,000 votes in 429 Chicago precincts after the March 16 primary, but withdrew his complaint last week. Dooley collected 362,183 votes to Power's 333,022.

Dooley will face Republican Reginald J. Holzer, who was unopposed, for the seat vacated by the retirement of Justice Walter V. Schafer.

In the other 1st Judicial District race for Supreme Court, William G. Clark, former Illinois attorney general, defeated Henry W. Dieringer by a margin of 402,129 to 301,732 for the Democratic nomination. Republican Lawrence X. Pusateri ran unopposed.

The winner in the Nov. 2 general election will replace Justice Thomas E. Kluczynski, who is retiring.

Lindberg states net worth

Illinois Comptroller George Lindberg Tuesday said his net worth is $106,654, including some $58,300 in assets from his holdings in two Chicago-area apartment buildings.

The figures, as of Dec. 31, 1975, show Lindberg with assets totaling $136,915, while his liabilities equal $80,261.

Lindberg listed his assets, held jointly with his wife Linda, as a Crystal Lake home valued at $67,850; a Crystal Lake apartment building sold on contract with a balance of $40,800 remaining; and a quarter interest in an apartment building in Evanston totaling $17,500.

Other assets included contributions to the General Assembly Retirement System, $16,500; a $7,213 savings account; and personal property valued at $33,000.

Among his liabilities, Lindberg listed a $44,874 mortgage on his home; a $2,000 personal loan and a $28,186 mortgage on the Crystal Lake apartment building.

'Teens need foster parents'

Mary Lee Leahy, director of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services, said Tuesday there is a need for foster parents to take care of teenagers.

"Right now we need another 400 foster families for adolescents," Mrs. Leahy said. "Currently we have about 5,000 boys and girls over age 12 in foster homes. But the need for homes always outstrips the supply.

Mrs. Leahy said those interested should check with the nearest department office or with private agencies which help children.

Falling building hurts girl

A 10-year old girl was critically injured Tuesday when a gust of wind blew down a large portion of a wall from a burnt building, crushing her underneath. Five other children escaped injuries.

Denise Bowel, the daughter of Jim and Carolyn Bowel of Eldorado, was listed in critical condition with a fractured skull and froken arms and legs at Pearce Hospital in Eldorado. She was later transferred to Beaconess Hospital in Evansville, Ind.

Police said the Bowel girl and five other children were playing behind a wall of the American Legion Building that burned last week.

While clean-up crews worked to clear the debris, high afternoon winds blew a large portion of the wall over, crushing the girl. The rest of the children ran out of the way, police said.

March record month for blood collection

A record-high 22,433 units of blood were collected in March in the Chicago area, the Chicago Regional Blood Program reports.

"Not since the Illinois Blood Labeling Act was passed in 1972 have blood collections reached such a high level in one month," said William Walsh, president of the Chicago Regional Blood Program, which coordinates blood bank activity in the metropolitan area.

NW Hospital opens new 20-bed coronary care unit

Northwest Community Hospital has opened a new wing for coronary patients who are in early phases of recovery.

The new 20-bed unit for "post-acute coronary care" will include the use of equipment that will continually monitor a patient's heart condition.

Previously, recovering coronary patients have been sent to a medical floor and given a room near a nursing station, but were not connected to a monitoring system, a hospital spokesman said.

In the new unit, located on the ninth floor of the hospital, patients will be able to walk around, because the telemetry equipment is worn around the neck and does not have to be wired to a console, the spokesman said.

Ask Andy

Friction key to microwave oven

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Amanda Walker, 11, of Omaha, Neb., for her question:

HOW DOES A MICROWAVE OVEN WORK?

Your kitchen is probably very different from your great-grandmother's kitchen. Most likely her garbage disposal was a pig kept out behind the house. The dishwasher could very well have been your grandmother. Her running water depended on how fast someone could run out to the well to get it. Most likely the only thing you would recognize would be her stove.

A modern-day kitchen is a marvel of efficiency and speed. Family meals can be cooked quickly, trash and garbage disposed of easily, and dishes rinsed and popped into the dishwasher. We have electric can openers, electric knives, timers on the oven and even turkeys with gadgets in their tummies to tell us when they are done.

The latest time saver to move into the kitchen is the microwave oven. And you have to admit it is fast. A baked potato is done in five minutes; a canned ham is ready in eight minutes, and a hot dog is set to go in just 60 seconds.

Whenever we cook, we use heat. Gas, wood, charcoal, electricity or whatever we use as fuel is converted to heat. This heat is transferred to the food and cooks it. Microwave ovens do not produce heat, as such, to cook with — they use short, high-frequency waves similar to radio waves.

These microwaves are produced in a vacuum tube called a magnetron. In many ovens, the microwaves travel through a tube to a fanlike device whose moving blades scatter them into the oven. Metal will reflect microwaves, and the metal sides of the oven bounce them from wall-to-wall until they enter the food that absorbs them.

As the microwaves enter the food, they cause the food molecules to vibrate very rapidly. The vibration causes friction, and the friction results in heat. Rub your hands together rapidly for a minute and you can feel the heat caused by friction. It is the heat generated by the food itself that cooks it.

While metal walls or pans reflect microwaves and food absorbs them, substances such as paper, plastic and glass transmit them. They allow the microwaves to pass right through and as a result make excellent cooking utensils.

In our busy rush-around world, the most precious commodity is time. It is here and gone in the blinking of an eye. A microwave oven is definitely a time-saver. On the other hand, there are those who relish the time they spend in the kitchen. One thing is certain — you have a choice.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Martin Slipschultz, 10, of Philadelphia, for his question:

WHERE DOES COTTON COME FROM?

Cotton is one of Mother Nature's miracles. The plant which yields this marvelous fiber plus many other valuable substances is grown all over the world. Its fluffy white fiber is made into mre clothes than any other fiber. The United States grows about 10.5 million bales every year, second only to Russia's 11 million bales. Most of the cotton grown in the United States comes from the Cotton Belt, which includes 14 states, headed by Texas, Mississippi and Arkansas. In addition to fibers for clothing and their textile products, the cotton plant can take credit for countless products made from its oily seeds, such as margarine, soap, linoleum and phonograph records.

This versatile plant thrives in fertile soil and a warm sunny climate. It likes plenty of moisture and room to grow to its full height of up to seven feet. After planting the seeds in furrows in April or May, farmers fertilize the soil and apply insecticides to discourage the many harmful insects that love cotton plants for dinner. Throughout the summer the plant flowers. As each flower withers, a boll is left which will mature in 45 to 60 days. When the boll cracks open, the cotton inside is ready for picking. Although cotton used to be picked entirely by hand, nowadays modern machines handle most of the harvesting procedures.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

The electronic wrist watch is becoming very popular. They figure that a half million will be bought this year. Someone came in to Landwehr's TV & Home Appliances with one and asked about repairs, but we had to decline. Although we have all the latest electronic servicing equipment for TV and most electronic appliances, it doesn't apply to watches. Besides we don't have one of those jeweler eye pieces to see the tiny works in the case.

These watches use a quartz crystal for high accuracy with an integrated circuit. It's surely the watch of the future for accuracy and durability. If we get many calls for this service, maybe we'll go into it.

Meanwhile, keep the phone number 255-0700 handy for prompt maintenance service on television and other electronics. We guarantee our work.

Crawford's bid, play tops

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

John Crawford's last major tournament was in Monte Carlo last summer. Playing with Alvin Roth, Matt Granovetter and James Jacoby, he finished second to the World Champion Italian team.

In the methods used by Roth and Crawford the two-club response was forcing to game unless followed by three clubs. Hence, two hearts would have been forcing so that three hearts was a slam try.

Crawford's three-spade bid showed that control. Four diamonds showed second-round control in that suit. Five notrump was the grandslam force to ask about trump honors. It was no problem for Roth to jump to the grand slam, since he held both ace and king of trumps.

The play illustrates Crawford's excellent technique. He started by cashing dummy's ace and king of clubs in order to jettison his two losing spades. Then he went after diamonds and was careful enough to ruff the third diamond with one of dummy's high trumps. He decided to return to his hand by ruffing a club. A spade play would have been fatalm Then he ruffed his last diamond with the last nigh trump drew trumps and had his grand slam.

The way we see it

We support vote in fire district

Inverness and unincorporated Palatine Township voters Saturday will be asked to approve a referendum to increase taxes for emergency paramedic service.

We urge voters to support the proposal for we fear paramedic service will be hampered seriously if more funding is not forthcoming. The cost of the life-saving paramedic program is minimal compared with the important service residents receive.

The district wants approval to levy a separate tax for emergency ambulance service along with the current tax levied for fire protection.

"We've come to the point where we just won't be able to afford to offer this (paramedic) service to our residents," said Fred Roesner, fire district trustee. "It's just getting too expensive and we need more money."

At issue is the rural fire district contribution to fire protection which is provided for Palatine, unincorporated and Inverness residents by the Palatine Fire Department. The rural district is being asked to contribute its share to upgrade the fire department, and we believe the request is valid.

The rural fire district buys and maintains its own equipment, but contracts with the village fire department for manpower. The department now has 17 full time paramedics who also are firemen and five volunteers for each call. Next year the department is to be fully staffed with 24 full time officers.

If the referendum passes, the fire district could tax as much as 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation for fire protection and 25 cents for emergency ambulance service. Roesner, however, said he believes the levy will be nowhere near the maximum and expects instead a combined rate of 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

It is — as Roesner says — "just getting too expensive and we need more money."

We believe passage of the referendum is necessary to provide that needed extra financing.

What? Not use the full potential of life saving training and equipment?

On this day in history:

• In 753 B.C., Rome was founded by Romulus.

• In 1954, U.S. Air Force planes began flying French troops to Indochina to reinforce the beseiged bastion of Dienbienphu. It subsequently fell to the Vietnam Communists.

• In 1967, the Greek army took over control of the government.

• In 1975, Nyugen Van Thieu resigned as president of South Vietnam, denouncing the United States as untrustworthy. He was replaced by Tran Van Huong, who prepared to begin peace talks with the Communists from the north.

Fence Post

Results are in, but school election still draws comment

The editorial endorsements of April 6 in The Palatine Herald and similar endorsements in other Paddock Publications newspapers were a subtle but gross misrepresentation of the candidacy of Jessalyn Nicklas for the Harper College Board of Trustees, as well as an undocumented attack on the actions and motives of other board members. As a student who has probably attended more board meetings at Harper in the past school year than the reporters for Paddock Publications, I cannot sit back and let papers distort the facts about the administration of Harper College.

The accusation that past boards have merely been a "rubber stamp" for administration proposals is wrong in several ways. First of all, there is very little at Harper that could be considered as "administration" proposals. The administration is the channel through which recommendations come to the board, and the administration performs any necessary feasibility studies or similar documentation, but the administration is seldom the source of the proposals. Most proposals come from one or more committees in which there is faculty and student participation, and these are open committee meetings. Furthermore, the non-attendance of Paddock reporters at these types of meetings has undoubtedly caused the confusion about the apparent "rubber stamp" policy at monthly board meetings. Informational sessions and committee meetings enable the board to thoroughly investigate any proposed actions well in advance of the formal meetings in which they must vote. Chances are good that an unacceptable proposal will die in committee, as it should.

ANOTHER ALLEGATION was that past boards have "sorely abused" the Illinois Open Meetings Law. I hope that Paddock Publications is ready to publish documentation for such charges of illegal conduct. I have personally been unable to discover any such evidence.

The most ridiculous allegation, however, related to Mrs. Nicklas. The editors claimed that "in recent years it has become clear that Mrs. Nicklas has become unable to objectively view the college's problems because of her close alliance with the college administration."

In fact, the vast experience of Mrs. Nicklas has probably enabled her to view the college's problems more objectively than other trustees, and her knowledge has given her the strength that is required of any trustee. It would be pretty hard to fool Mrs. Nicklas.

There seems to be a more fundamental misunderstanding, however, by the Paddock writers. They seem to think that it is unethical for a board to get along well with its administration. Instead, they should realize that the board must have a good relationship with the administration if there is to be anything other than chaos.

The reason is simple enough. The board hired the administration to carry out board policy and to help the board to oversee the college. If the two groups cannot work together well, then the board had better fire their administration and hire new people who can do the job. Thus a close alliance between the board and the administration, provided that the board is in control, is only a sign of a well-managed school. There is no need for colorful or angry debate as long as the interests of the community are well-protected.

IF THE EDITORS at Paddock Publications are as concerned about Harper as they pretend, and not just trying to further their own competitive interests, then I suggest that they get their facts straight before writing editorials. Unsubstantiated and misguided allegations may sell newspapers to an innocent public, but they do not serve the public interest.

I challenge the editors to publish any evidence in support of the allegations which they have made. I will eagerly await such disclosures, since a year of hard work this year has not enabled me to discover such improper conduct.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Concerning abuses by the Harper board of the Illinois Open Meetings Law:

• In July 1972, The Herald reported that the Harper board had been holding unannounced dinner meetings before regular board meetings "as the need arises." Mrs. Nicklas said the meetings were to discuss issues allowed in closed meetings and "matters of general board interest."

• In May 1973, The Herald reported that the board had an unannounced executive session.

• In July 1974, the board held closed meetings with an attorney to discuss a faculty grievance procedure, claiming the matter might be the subject of future collective bargaining. The board was publicly criticized for that stand by Arlington Heights resident Richard Schlott.

• In Feb. 1975, Board Member Shirley Munson, who was elected board chairman a month later, said a closed meeting was scheduled by the board and she was afraid it would contain discussion of items not allowed under the Open Meetings Law. Later she said the board had followed the law.

• In March 1975, after considerable debate, the board finally, in response to a letter from The Herald, agreed to notify the press of all board meetings — including closed meetings, something that had been repeatedly requested by The Herald since at least 1972.

Since that action, and since the election of Mrs. Munson as board chairman, The Herald has not found any evidence of abuse of the Open Meetings Law. The Herald editorial of April 6 praised Mrs. Munson for her defense of both the letter and spirit of the law.

Washington Window: The Chicken, the egg and Jimmy Carter

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four people sat around a table in the cocktail lounge of a Washington hotel last week and talked politics. Two were young professional campaign workers and one was an elected state official. The other was a reporter.

The subject of the conversation, as it so often is these days among people interested in politics, was Jimmy Carter and how did he get so big so fast. The discussion that followed quickly took on the dimensions of the classic conundrum: "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?"

The campaign types and the state official felt Carter's success was mainly due to the favorable attention he had received from the national media, especially on television. They said that the former Georgia governor had become almost a regular on the network news broadcasts since early in the winter and had been featured on the covers of two major newsmagazines in the same week in February.

The reporter agreed that Carter had been getting a lot of exposure, but objected to the implication that the media had somehow created Carter. He argued that media had generally treated all the Democratic candidates as nonentities, and did not give Carter major attention until after he began to demonstrate that he had unusual voter appeal.

He recalled that Carter first drew national attention late in 1975 when he emerged the favorite in straw votes at Iowa and Florida Democratic gatherings and did not make the Time and Newsweek covers until he had won the New Hampshire primary.

He also argued that Carter had not received a free ride from the media, recalling considerable attention given to charges that Carter had given ambiguous replies to questions about abortion in Iowa and that he had favored ending tax deductions for home mortgage interest during the Massachusetts campaign.

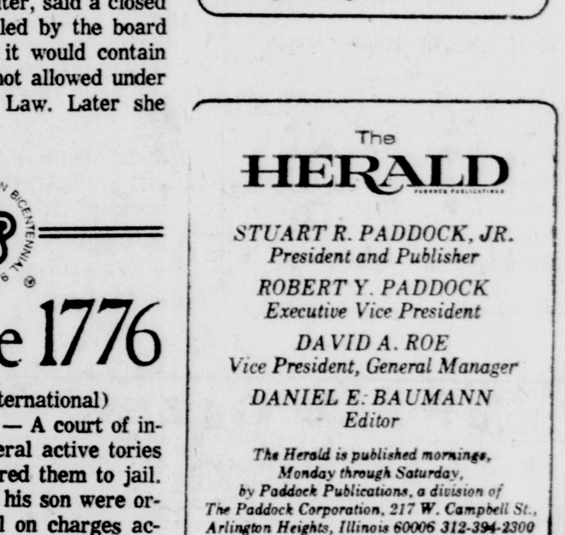

Which brought the discussion to Carter's "ethnic purity" comment.

All four agreed that Carter's remark had the potential to destroy his campaign. And the reporter pointed out that the media certainly was giving it as much attention as it had to incidents that could be construed as favorable to Carter. Now, he suggesten, the theory that Carter had little going for him besides a friendly press would be tested.

The discussion then turned to important matters, such as Washington's chances of getting a major league baseball team. But later the reporter realized that the "ethnic purity" episode would not end the argument.

If the Carter campaign went down the drain, critics of the media still might say the newspapers and broadcasters were responsible, having decided to pull down the creature they had built up.

So the argument will go on. The media will continue to give its attention to the people and events it believes make news. And the politicians will continue to believe that the media creates the news. It is possible, of course, that there is some truth in both positions, but that does not answer the question about the chicken and the egg.

Picturing the life of O'Hare's flash photographer

the service, and it really doesn't fit into my personality," Jerry said.

As a 17-year-old, back when World War II was having its heyday, Jerry already was badgering the U.S. Marines for enlistment. And then they said yes. But she broke her leg.

So today, it's Master Sgt. Jeraldynne Bielke, U.S. Air Force Reserves, reporting for duty, SIR! (And would you please watch the birdie, SIR!)

It was just 8:15 a.m. one recent day when I arrived at Jerry's second floor office in Building 40, a blue barracks on the northeast corner of O'Hare. But she already had been at work more than three hours.

Jerry occupies a small office cluttered with plants, photographic equipment, model planes which hang from the ceiling, overflowing drawers and other quasi important things which a person accumulates in 18 years.

HER EYES SPARKLE a great "Hello!" and you're off on a zany adventure through, among other things, the 37 pairs of slacks Jerry made last year after learning to sew.

She just may have more good stories than an otter has hairs. They are about the Russian cosmonauts and being kissed once by Eddy Arnold, about escorting Bob Hope and remembering a visit by Mamie Eisenhower.

It took Jerry most of her life to receive a Presidential autograph. Then guess who she got.

"Wouldn't you know it," Jerry lamented, looking at the picture of Richard M. Nixon. "The first autographed picture I get, and it has to be from one I do not admire the most. How do you say that diplomatically?"

It all began for Jerry 51 years ago when she was born in Des Moines, Iowa. The house where that happened still stands. But there is no record of Jerry.

"Mother died when I was born," said Jerry. "I can't get a birth certificate. I can't convince the state of Iowa that I was born."

JERRY GREW UP all over the country. Her favorite spot was Fairbury, Neb. "It's the most peaceful, quiet place I've ever seen," she said. "The sky is blue, grass is green and people live forever."

As a kid in Minneapolis, Jerry read radio scripts on "Uncle Tom's Show." She later held professional jobs on four radio stations and many newspapers.

But it was the military which always attracted her fancy. "Nice girls didn't go into the service!" Jerry remembered.

Jerry enlisted in the Air Force on April 12, 1946, and took basic training at Hunter College in New York. Her first duty assignment was at Chicago's Navy Pier.

She came to O'Hare on Jan. 1, 1958, as a casualty service officer. It was to have been a short-term assignment as the O'Hare base was being discontinued.

"This base is always being closed," said Jerry. "They almost made the grade in 1970. We even had orders to go to Dobbins Air Force Base in Marietta, Ga."

HER CURRENT JOB began in the strangest way. "I was sitting at home one weekend about 16 years ago, wondering if I could take a picture good enough to get into a Chicago newspaper," said Jerry.

So she trekked out to O'Hare, photographed a few things and took her film to the Chicago offices of United Press International. They liked the stuff and put two photographs on their wire.

The next morning, Jerry Bielke had photographs in both Chicago morning newspapers.

It was the camera which helped cause Jerry's most memorable stumble one day in 1961. She stumbled into John F. Kennedy.

Because they frown on such action, a couple Secret Service agents assisted Jerry right off her feet and into the air, where she dangled.

Of course, Jerry had to say something.

"Excuse me, sir," she offered to the President.

And Mr. Kennedy said, "That's all right."

Of such moments her lifetime is made.

County Comr. Bonk dead at 57

Cook County Comr. Charles S. Bonk, 57, one of the 10 Democrats on the county board, died Tuesday of a heart attack in his home.

Mr. Bonk was a former state representative and Chicago alderman who joined the county board in 1962. Last summer he was acquitted of federal extortion and income tax evasion charges in the first defeat for then U.S. Atty. James Thompson on a political corruption case.

He was chairman of the county board's zoning and building committee both before and after the federal indictment. He had presided over the county board's zoning and building committee just before the county board meeting Monday.

The vacancy on the county board will be filled by appointment by the remaining Democrats on the board.

Back pay for Guardsmen

More than 3,169 former members of the Illinois National Guard are eligible for back pay, but only 167 have received it so far, National Guard officials said this week.

The back pay is due to guardmen and members of reserve units who were on duty for training between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31, 1972. Persons still in the reserves and National Guard already have received their back pay.

The pay is due because Pres. Richard Nixon withheld a military pay raise scheduled for Oct. 1 until Jan. 1 1973, an action later overruled by the courts.

Former National Guardsmen may contact the Illinois Adjutant General's office to claim their pay. Reservists may contact their own organizations.

New crime record review

Persons with criminal records may review and correct their records under new procedures developed by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

The procedures, required by federal law, allow any person to review his criminal record at any law enforcement agency in the state during regular business hours. Corrections of the records will be made by local law enforcement agencies and the state Bureau of Identification.

It's Thompson—by a neck

James Thompson, Republican candidate for governor, said it was just for fun, so he let Michael Howlett catch up in the backstretch. He said he won't be so generous when it's for real.

Thompson edged Howlett, his Democratic rival, by half a length Tuesday in an American Cancer Society bike race for about 100 yards around the Civic Center Plaza.

"It was once around the Picasso," Thompson said, referring to a sculpture in the plaza. "An elderly lady suddenly appeared in my path and I had to go around the pool, too, but it didn't slow me down."

The heavier Howlett kidded about the wet conditions before the race saying, "Thompson's got me at a disadvantage — he's a mudder."

Thompson said later, "I rested in the backstretch to let Michael catch up, but I wasn't going to let him beat me."

Nixon backer pleads guilty

William Rentschler, who managed President Nixon's 1968 campaign in Illinois, pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of submitting a false financial statement to the First National City Bank of New York.

Rentschler entered the plea before U.S. District Court Judge Alfred Kirkland, who sentenced him to a year and a day in jail.

In a statement issued prior to his court appearance, Rentschler said he decided to plead guilty because "no one human being can successfully take on the federal monster."

Rentschler was indicted by a federal grand jury in 1973 on charges of defrauding 28 banks on loans of more than $1.4 million. There were 23 counts in the indictment, but 22 counts were dismissed when he argreed to plead guilty in the case.

50% agent increase asked

The Illinois Racing Board will ask the legislature for a 50 per cent increase in the number of Illinois Bureau of investigation agents assigned to the state's 10 race tracks, sources said Tuesday.

Gov. Daniel Walker has yet to take a position on the issue, but his proposed budget for fiscal 1977 provides for only a $100 increase in the IBI's racetrack division. The unit is designed to help stop corruption in racing.

Sources said the cost of the IBI's racetrack division is borne by the state tracks on a pro-rated basis and so the IBI's work costs the taxpayers nothing.

William Masterson, racing board secretary, said he cannot divulge the exact number of agents currently assigned to the racetrack division, but he said it was between 15 and 30.

Blevins death a fraud?

Police said Tuesday they have concluded that Estel Blevins, a missing Florida stockbroker, was the same man who identified a body as his own at the Cook County morgue and later sent letters to newspapers saying he did it because he feared for his life.

Blevins, 32, Clearwater, Fla., is suspected of trying to fake his own death in an attempted $250,000 insurance fraud. He has been in hiding since he took an unscheduled vacation a month ago from his job at Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

Boy Scout executive dead

David L. Church, scout executive of the Chicago Area Council of America, died of an apparent heart attack Tuesday at Northwestern Memorial Hospital. He was 48.

Church, of west suburban River Forest, moved to the Chicago area last December from Honolulu, Hawaii, where he had served as scout executive of the Aloha Council since 1970.

FTC seeks to make funeral costs public

by LEA TONKIN

Consumers will find it easier to obtain and compare funeral service price information, if the Federal Trade Commission has its way.

The agency invites the public to attend hearings on its proposed funeral practices rule, starting May 10 in Chicago.

Joy Jones, a representative of the FTC office in Chicago, said area residents will hear "lively" discussion at the hearings. The meetings will be at the New Federal Building, 230 S. Dearborn, Room 347 AB. Hearings will start at 9:30 a.m. during the three-week stint. The funeral practices hearings started this week in New York and will continue in Chicago, Seattle, Los Angeles, Atlanta and Washington, D.C.

The FTC is seeking adoption of a trade rule that would require disclosure of price and other information in the estimated $2 billion funeral industry. Approximately 22,000 U.S. funeral homes would be regulated by the proposed ban on deceptive and exploitative practices.

CALLING FOR AN end to the "economic and emotional injuries" inflicted on funeral buyers, the agency intends to override any state laws that require a casket for cremation and prevent price advertising.

A 1974 Herald survey of Northwest suburban funeral costs showed a wide range of service prices. Although some funeral directors offered itemized bills, explanations of service costs generally were difficult to obtain by telephone. Emotional references to "cheap graveboxes" and "shipping case caskets" were among the emotional merchandise descriptions offered by morticians.

The proposed FTC rule would require mortuaries to furnish an itemized price list for goods and services. The charges for flowers, obituary notices, limousine service, use of facilities for viewing, and other services would be quoted separately. A complete price list for caskets and vaults, including price information provided by telephone, would be required.

SHAMING FUNERAL buyers into expensive purchases would be prohibited by the agency rule. Mortuaries could not misrepresent the necessity for embalming, caskets or vaults under the rule. Consumers would be informed of their right to choose only necessary services. Funeral directors would be prohibited from concealing inexpensive caskets and embalming a body without permission.

No information was available Tuesday from the National Funeral Directors Assn. in Milwaukee, Wis., about the reported suit to halt FTC funeral industry rule hearings. The association said, however, that a recent survey of funeral purchasers shows nine out of 10 buyers were "very satisfied" with the service, however.

THE NATIONAL TRADE group sponsored a study by Central Surveys, Inc. Of the 1,005 persons interviewed by the agency, 95 per cent said they believed funeral directors did a good job of explaining costs.

The survey of consumers who arranged funeral services during the past 10 years also indicates 97 per cent of the participants though funeral directors and their staff were helpful and considerate. Few complaints were registered, the funeral industry group said, and "most people would call the same funeral director again."

THE HIGH COST of funerals is the target of a proposed Federal Trade Commission rule. The agency slated Chicago hearings starting May 10 at the new Federal Building.

The study "bears out their (the association's) contention that the funeral is not just another commercial transaction, as some federal government officials would have you believe, but that it is an experience of real value to the bereaved in which personal services and attention are important," the NFDA said. State and local regulation of the funeral industry is preferred by the organization.

Dow leaps past 1,000 mark, up 15.35 points

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, buoyed by reports of long-term economic recovery prospects, staged its best rally in six weeks Tuesday as the Dow Jones industrial average broke through the 1,000 level in heavy active trading.

The Dow average soared 15.35 points to 1,003.46, the highest level since it finished at 1,004.09 April 5. It was the best gain in the blue-chip average since it climbed 15.82 points March 8.

A 7.63-point winner Monday, the Dow has gained 28.81 points the past three sessions while pushing toward its three-year high of 1,009.21 set March 24.

The turnover of 23,500,000 shares, far higher than the 16,500,000 traded Monday, was the heaviest since 24,169,300 shares changed hands April 6. The increased trading encouraged observers.

A MAJOR CATALYST behind the surge was a Wall Street Journal article that said administration economists, and a few outside of government, have become convinced the economic recovery would proceed through 1977 without much interference.

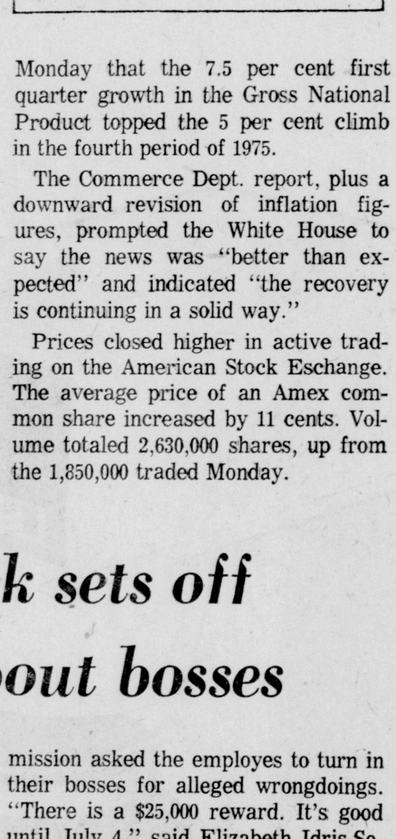

The rally was as broad as it was steep. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.43 to 102.87, the NYSE common stock index climbed 0.80 to 54.76 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased by 50 cents.

Advances routed declines, 1,208 to 332, among the 1,900 issues crossing the tape. That was the largest number of issues traded in weeks.

The Journal story added weight and hope to the Commerce Dept. report Monday that the 7.5 per cent first quarter growth in the Gross National Product topped the 5 per cent climb in the fourth period of 1975.

The Commerce Dept. report, plus a downward revision of inflation figures, prompted the White House to say the news was "better than expected" and indicated "the recovery is continuing in a solid way."

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Eschange. The average price of an Amex common share increased by 11 cents. Volume totaled 2,630,000 shares, up from the 1,850,000 traded Monday.

Secretary week sets off complaints about bosses

It's National Secretaries Week, a time when bosses can show their appreciation to their hard-working employes.

The April 19-23 promotion is aimed at convincing managers they should spend time and money to honor their secretaries.

This crass, commercial approach to celebrations is too much, complain the Peoples Bicentennial Commission and its affiliate, the Chicago Area Peoples Bicentennial Commission. They're calling for action by secretaries, spouses of corporate executives and journalists.

IN LETTERS MAILED to 10,000 secretaries across the U. S., the commission asked the employes to turn in their bosses for alleged wrongdoings. "There is a $25,000 reward. It's good until July 4," said Elizabeth Idris-Soven a representative of the Chicago group. "It's for information leading to the arrest, conviction and imprisonment of a top executive in any of the country's top 500 companies."

Labeling the corporations the "Tories of the day," she said it's a secretary's duty to challenge the "monopolies."

Then there is the Women Employed organization's plan to present the "Simon Legree" award today, in honor of National Secretaries Day. The Chicago group said the winner will be the boss who thought up the "pettiest office procedure" of the year.

"Petty office rules and procedures are an insult to working women. At one company, for instance, certain level management people are not allowed to speak to people who are two or more grades lower than they are," said Jackie Schad of the WE National Secretaries Week Planning Week Committee.

A more traditional celebration is planned by the King's Wharf restaurant, Lincolnshire. The restaurant wants to honor secretaries with bosses' chance to win a champagne dinner for two for their "Girl Friday" and tickets to a Drury Lane North theatre performance. No mention is made of male secretaries' chances to win.

Financial trend discussion by economist today

Economist Eliot Janeway will discuss financial trends at a Schaumburg program slated today by the Bank of Elk Grove.

The 4 p.m. session will be held at the Lancer Steak House. Janeway says his mission is "turning real dangers into false alarms." He writes a syndicated column, a weekly newsletter and is the author of such books as "You and Your Money."

Read "Leisure" every Saturday in The Herald and you'll know what's happening in the northwest suburbs all weekend long.

Rosy future seen for car industry

by EDWARD S. LECHTZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — After two years of what can only be described as depressing, Detroit's automotive executives have returned to their old ways — optimism tinged with an overwhelming desire to predict record-shattering sales.

Four months ago, most executives scoffed at a prediction by Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of giant General Motors Corp., that domestic and imported auto sales would hit 10.25 million cars. That would be the third best in industry history, behind 1972 and 1973.

His counterparts said his estimate was high by, perhaps, one-half million cars.

NOW, WITH SALES in the first quarter at almost 2.25 million cars, new cars going out the showroom doors at nearly an 11-million-a-year rate and the best months still ahead, no one is scoffing at Murphy. In fact, most admit his estimate may have been on the conservative side.

Ford Motor Co. Chairman Henry Ford II, never one to try to alibi his way out of a bad guess, admits he was "dead wrong" last fall when he said 1976 auto sales would total around 9.6 million cars, still an improvement over 1975's 8.6 million level.

His top executives have been traveling the land in the last month putting out the "new" Ford word.

By 1980, says Ford Pres. Lee A. Iacocca, the U.S. auto industry will break the 15 million barrier in the sale of cars and trucks, eclipsing the old 14.6 million mark set in 1973. That's two years later than industry predictions before the two-year slump, but it's an optimistic outlook no one was willing to make at this time last year.

"IT'S A GOOD TIME to be in the automotive business," Iacocca says. "Just think, just one year ago everybody was saying it was a lousy time to be in the auto business."

Backing up that optimism are some solid statistics:

• Domestic auto sales in the first half of the 1976-model year were up 33 per cent from depressed year-earlier levels. Import sales in the same period dropped 12 per cent and instead of grabbing an uncomfortable (from Detroit's standpoint) 19 per cent of total sales, fell to a lower-than-average 13.4 per cent.

• Industrywide layoffs that peaked at 275,000 workers during the winter of 1975 have dropped below 50,000. Many of those workers should find themselves back in the auto plants when the 1977-model year starts this fall.

• Chrysler Corp., hardest hit by the two-year slump, has come back from its worst year in history with a $72 million profit in the first three months of 1976. That's the second best on record and has helped the No. 3 automaker wipe out loans of more than $275 million. Chrysler Chairman John Riccardo says the auto firm has been realigned so that in the next downturn, "We won't fall in the soup."

• Consumer surveys now show Americans in a better mood to spend money on big ticket items like cars, homes and appliances than at any time since the Arabs shut off the oil flow in late 1973.

With all those heavy sluggers in the lineup and a renewed interest in larger cars — a consumr switch that once again left Detroit auto executives wondering how to plan their production — it's no surprise that Murphy's prediction is being viewed as the observation of a wise man.

MURPHY MONDAY revised his new-car-sales forecast upward by one-quarter million cars, but warned that an auto workers' strike this fall could cripple the nation's economic recovery.

The GM chairman also renewed the automaker's stand on the escalating cost of health care and a possible union demand for a shorter work week. GM spokesmen have said the company would try to get workers to pick up part of the health-care tab, a move union leaders have said could lead to "confrontation bargaining."

Claiming his earlier forecast of 10¼ million car sales this year, including imports, was too "conservative," Murphy said sales should easily hit 10½ million new cars. Total sales of 13.5 million cars and trucks would be second only to the record 14.6 million sales in 1973.

"This brighter forecast for the industry carries one caution," Murphy told the Economic Club of Detroit.

"If 1976 is indeed to be the second best sales year in history, the labor negotiations in our industry must be resolved peacefully and responsibly without interruptions in production," he said. "I am cautioning that there are costs that not even America can afford.

Contract talks to replace expiring three-year pacts covering more than 700,000 auto workers begin in mid-July between the United Auto Workers union and the four U.S. auto companies. Strikes have interrupted output in each of the last three negotiations.

Conservation need stressed in energy report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Because of slow progress in unlocking additional sources of energy, new stress is placed on conservation through 1985 in the updated national plan for energy research and development made public Monday.

The plan, released by the Energy Research and Development Administration, suggests the nation can buy time for its efforts to become independent from oil imports by making more efficient use of energy a high priority in the next decade.

Meanwhile, the technology to produce a variety of new resources can be developed.

MORE SOPHISTICATED techniques will come into play in the next 10 years to expand supplies of currently available power sources — coal, gas and oil and light water reactors — the plan said, while efforts are under way to increase production of synthetic fuels, oil shale, geothermal and solar energy.

By the year 2000, the emphasis will be on getting power from nuclear breeder reactors, fusion and solar electricity. One or all of these "virtually inexhaustible resources" are viewed as final solutions to the nation's long-term energy needs, the report said.

ERDA issued its first national energy research plan last June, and released the updated version Monday under a mandate from Congress to produce an annual report.

The new plan recognizes conservation may be a more rapid way to increase national energy sufficiency in the near future than efforts to increase the domestic fuel supply, Assistant Administrator Roger W. A. LeGassie said.

"THERE IS A concern of slowness on the supply side," he said. "We are not doing better in terms of reducing imports."

LeGassie said economic and population growth, as well as some change in American lifestyles, is implied in the plan.

ERDA Chief Robert C. Seamans said the nation could save up to 20 million barrels of oil a day by the year 2000 through aggressive conservation efforts.

"We've got to work a great deal harder on conservation," in all aspects of life, he said.

FOR EXAMPLE, there should be more efficient use of building space for heating and cooling, a move toward electric autos, better use of energy by industry and utilities, and recycling of wastes.

Other possibilities are gas stoves that don't have fuel-wasting pilot lights or hot water heaters that turn off when they're not in use.

Seamans said solar energy for heating and cooling may make up 6 to 7 per cent of total national consumption by the turn of the century.

He said the report clearly states the increasing importance of nuclear energy, and several hundred plants may exist by 1985.

The plan says the best way to achieve energy goals is through private industry and market forces.

Medical service better by computer

Gerald Kien, president of the Telemed Corp., Hoffman Estates, said the firm's annual medical services capacity increased to some $15 million as a result of the recent $1.5 million computer processing facilities expansion.

"The company has been pressed by rapid growth in demand for its computer-analyzed electrocardiogram service by the nearly 1,000 subscribing hospitals, clinics and cardiologists," Kien said. "During the past 12 months, the number of ECG's analyzed by Telemed rose 40 per cent to an annual rate of 1.4 million.

"The new computer capacity, plus some small further modifications and additions, has boosted Telemed's ECG analysis capacity to an annual rate of more than 2.9 million," Kien said. He also reported increased manufacturing, field sales and service capacity.

The Illinois firms and the state Dept. of Business and Economic Development, will seek to expand Illinois' trade role in the Mideast. The Tehran visit and a Cairo trade mission are coordinated by BED officials.

"Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor'™ MERIT delivered more taste."

—American Institute of Consumer Opinion

Extensive taste-testing with thousands of smokers shows 'Enriched Flavor'™ MERIT delivers more taste than higher tar brands.

The bottom line was conclusive: In a series of taste tests conducted for MERIT by the American Institute of Consumer Opinion, smokers from all across the country judged MERIT to have more flavor than five leading low tar cigarette brands.*

What's really startling—and of major importance to all smokers—is that MERIT has less tar than these five brands.

Less tar. Yet more taste.

That's the report on a remarkable new taste process called 'Enriched Flavor.' A way to pack tobacco with extra flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

'Enriched Flavor.' It's exclusive to MERIT. The cigarette with only 9 mg. tar, one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

MERIT MENTHOL is packed with 'Enriched Flavor' too. And in similar tests, 9 mg. MERIT MENTHOL was reported to deliver as much —or more—taste than the 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar menthol brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now smoke the cigarette.

The art of medical illustration

A career that dates to Da Vinci

by MONICA PERIN

An unlikely combination, art and medicine, but that is what Cheryl Haugh of Mount Prospect always liked. So she made a career of them, becoming one of about 300 medical illustrators in the U.S.

It's not a new field — "it goes back to Leonardo Da Vinci's anatomical drawings" — but it's just not a profession that a lot of people are very familiar with, even, sometimes, hospital people.

Cheryl, who lives in Rogers Park now, works at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Chicago, which previously had no department of medical illustration.

"It's been a matter of educating people here as to what medical illustration has to offer, what I can do for them," Cheryl said in a recent interview in her cubbyhole office-studio at the medical center.

The Prospect High School graduate came to that hospital in January, 1974, six months after completing her bachelor of science in medical art degree at the University of Illinois.

"I wanted to be a doctor when I was younger, but when it came to the reality, there were a lot of drawbacks. I enjoyed art as well as being interested in medicine, and I found out about medical illustration as a freshman in high school.

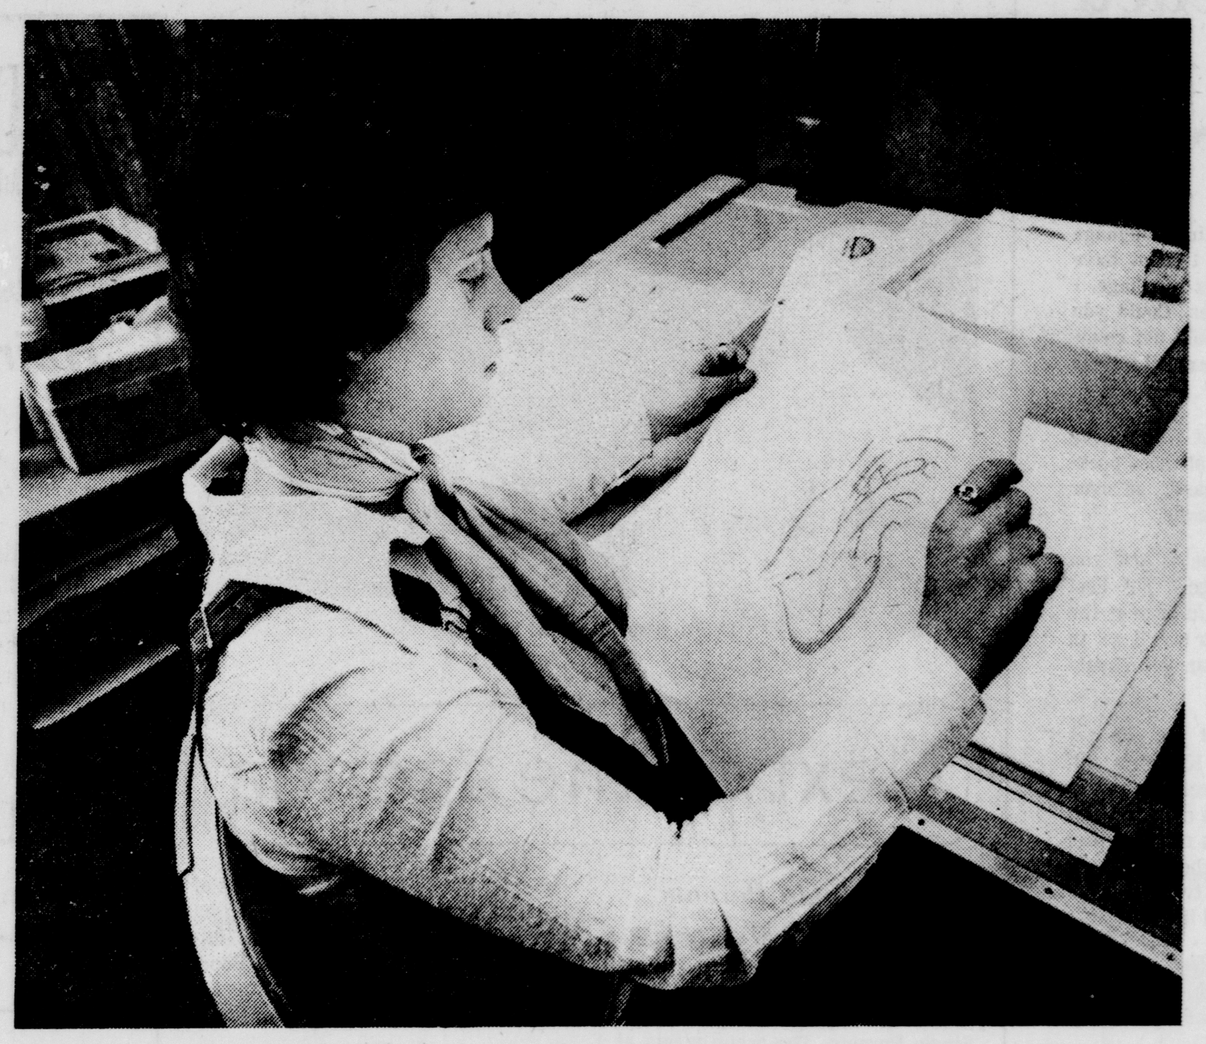

"IT SOUNDED like a dynamite combination of the things I liked to do, so I got some information from the American Medical Association and headed that way."

After high school Cheryl obtained an associate degree in art from Harper College, then went to Champaign where she studied such things as anatomy, physiology, pathology and other medical courses.

Degrees in medical illustration are offered at only five schools in the U.S. and Canada, Cheryl said, although the profession is expanding into more areas of application and more schools are beginning to develop master's programs.

There has been a professional organization, the Association of Medical Illustrators, since the 1940s. Cheryl expects to apply for membership in this group soon, now that she has the necessary experience.

Meanwhile, in her daily work, Cheryl deals with a variety of art media to produce the anatomical and mechanical sketches and illustrations requested by hospital personnel. She uses pen and ink, color process, photography, wax molds, and acrylic imbeddings to show particular parts of the body, cross sections, X-ray application, surgical procedures, as well as charts, graphs and diagrams.

AS A MEDICAL illustrator for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center, Chicago, Cheryl Haugh, formerly of Mount Prospect, works in a variety of media, but most often she draws quick limited area sketches such as this one she did of a human heart for The Herald photographer.

On her shelves are a wax model of her own foot which she made in school and which looks eerily real; a prosthetic device for a cancer patient, consisting of a rubber section of cheek and a glass eye; and a solid acrylic "egg" containing a preserved fetus.

ANOTHER OF Cheryl's three-dimensional projects was an exhibit on chronic asthmatic children and their ability to participate in school activities. The exhibit, created for a pediatrician at the hospital to use at a medical meeting, won an award from the American Academy of Pediatrics.

But more often Cheryl is drawing relatively quick, limited-area sketches of a surgical procedure or a pathological disorder. She may observe surgeries and question physicians to develop the sketches they have requested, or they may provide her with their own rough drawing and she must do research to complete the illustration.

Naturally, accuracy is of paramount importance in Cheryl's work. What she produces is used in medical papers to be presented at meetings, in textbooks, on film and closed-circuit TV, and in hospital publications for in-house training and patient use.

Her audience may be medical students, physicians, nurses, other medical personnel and patients. She is presently working on illustrations for a program for cardiac patients, teaching them how to take care of themselves.

Another project which Cheryl terms the "most exciting part of my career" has been her work for the renowned French plastic surgeon Dr. Paul Tessier. Tessier visits the U of I's Center for Cranial Facial Anomalies every so often on his "rounds" to hospitals around the world. The center, like Dr. Tessier, specializes in corrective surgery for congenital deformities of the head.

CHERYL HAS produced illustrations of a particular deformity which Dr. Tessier believes has never been accurately illustrated before. She is also illustrating his surgical technique for correcting it.

Like anyone else in the medical profession, Cheryl takes the unpleasant aspects of illness in stride, although she says she has her limitations.

"The first major crunch was getting used to the cadavers (during her training in school). Next was surgery. I've now narrowed it down to pain — I still get queasy when I hear someone moaning."

Cheryl, who is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Haugh of Mount Prospect, says she anticipates going back to school to earn a master's degree and then becoming the director of a medical illustration department, planning and producing the entire program.

Gil Aimbez won't compromise

(A new generation of fashion designers is coming of age on New York's Seventh Avenue. NEA's fashion reporter Ellie Grossman reports on four new talents in a four-part series, starting today.)

"I started out with extreme styling that only 10 per cent of the population would buy, but that's not what I want. If you're on Seventh Avenue, you want to succeed as a manufacturer. Still, I don't compromise. You don't see a basic tailored shirt in my line or an A-line skirt because a woman has a thousand of these in her closet. She doesn't need me to design them for her."

GIL AIMBEZ

What Gil Aimbez does dream up for the Genre label — at a maximum cost of $100 — are simple, innovative clothes, many cut square and loose. For summer, there are U-neck sundresses with toggles at the shoulder in crinkle cloth, wrap skirts, aprons, square sleeve big tops, trousers, shorts, jumpsuits and caftans in "nocolors" such as plum, apricot and yellow to meld with lots of other colors as well as the plaid he designed exclusively for them.

And there's his sense of humor. The harem jumpsuit in paper-thin cotton spreads out to the dimensions of a sheet. "You can wear it to the beach and use it as a blanket," he says.

HE'S A COMER, this short, friendly 35-year-old. "People say to me, you're that old!" And in the year and a half that he has been designing for Genre, his work has been featured in the magazines that matter and Women's Wear Daily. Three times in one week in the latter, although, he admits laughing, the last mention was to correct a caption attributing his clothes to someone else.

It hasn't happened quickly for the black-bearded man with glasses, high forehead and bulbous nose.

"I worked for 13 years in this business before I finally got to do what I wanted," he says. "I never felt the jobs I was offered gave me the chance to express myself fully."

When he came to New York from California, he put in his time as a pattern maker and assistant to Anne Klein and later, to Carol Horn.

"ANNE KLEIN taught me that as long as you design for the fabric you're working with, you can design anything and it will be in good taste as well as seasonless."

And Aimbez believes in seasonless dressing. What you buy now can be worn months from now. The secret lies in layering.

"Layering is fun," he says. "Each piece goes on easily and was designed to work with others or alone. That's why layering isn't bulky. Proportion makes the art of layering. The armhole of a vest, for instance, must be cut longer than that of the shirt."

In the workrooms behind the showroom at Genre, where employes look up and smile, there are stacks of cardboard boxes labeled "Gil's ideas."

"I try to learn from my mistakes," he says, smiling. "I save charts of the past season to see what worked and what didn't. In my apron dress, for instance, I changed to shoulder buttons because I found women didn't like to pull it over their heads."

HE HAS A LIBRARY of books for stimulation and he considers what he does designing through clothes. "I conceive an idea, then look for a fabric to meet that design. This spring, I did a motorman's coat, double breasted, with a drop shoulder, very soft in imported linen. It's part of my workman's compensation group — cotton-blend clothes in railroad stripes and it was inspired by a book from the 1900s.

"I like to mix patterns and all my things are designed to work together — stripes and floral prints, for example."

And they'd better be made properly because he won't compromise with execution. "I once sent back 365 shirts because I didn't like the way they were made. What you see in the showroom is exactly what you get in the stores. And if there are problems and we have to switch a fabric or something, I insist on sending out letters."

ONE OF 13 CHILDREN born to a Filipino schoolteacher and a Japanese mother in Los Angeles, he was a fussy child. "I didn't have much, but I wanted it to look right. My mother used to tell me, if you don't like the way I iron your clothes, do it yourself. And I did."

In high school, one day he passed a classroom where fashion illustration was being taught and he was intrigued. "I wanted to join it, but the principal didn't know what to do. They'd never had a boy in there before."

But Aimbez got in and at 16, won a scholarship to an art school. Contestants submitted designs anonymously, he says, and the sweet irony of it all was, "The judges never knew I was a boy."

THE WEEKENDER, designed for Genre by Gil Aimbez, needs no suitcase. It all can be worn — tunic jacket, zip front capped sleeve vest, basic pant, drop shoulder stand collar shirt.

'Smarting off' to a police officer? That's illegal!

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

To L. R. From your letter I gleaned the following facts:

Two of your friends were visiting in Chicago. The driver made an illegal U turn and when stopped and questioned by two police officers, admitted that she had had a "few beers."

The other passenger "smarted off" to the second officer when he became verbally abusive to her. Both girls were arrested for "not cooperating with a police officer" when the driver joined in the argument. Since they had only enough bond money for one of them, the driver was permitted to drive home to the suburbs, get some money and return, while her friend was taken to a police station. When the driver returned, she found that her friend had been removed to other quarters because the first station was overcrowded.

Earlier, one of the officers discussed the breath test with the driver, warning her of the consequences. He did not believe she was in a favorable position to take it. You believe he was "trying to get revenue" and that he was wrong in permitting her to drive home at the same time that he was accusing her of DWI (driving while intoxicated).

Since the girls had never been in trouble before and are not "drinkers," you think their rights were violated.

Perhaps more detailed information is needed for a precise opinion. But nuances that clarify a situation are often lacking when conversation is repeated from one person to several more, so please take this into consideration when you read my answers to your questions.

• Of course, you were right when you said that to "smart off" didn't help the situation. A person has a right to explain — or even disagree — with a police officer if she thinks he is wrong. Losing one's temper, even when she feels it's justified, and using strong language isn't only unwise, it's illegal. Result? "Not cooperating with an officer."

• This does not mean, however, that the officer has a right to say or do anything he wishes. Should your friends feel that they were mistreated, they may report the incident to the officers' superior. The law is, though, that a person cannot resist arrest even when she believes she is innocent.

• The fact that the officer discussed the breath test does not, in my opinion, indicate that he was trying to shake her down. How many are a "few beers?" Only the breath test knows for sure, and it doesn't take many to reach that one-tenth of one per cent!

• It's a policeman's duty to explain the law and its consequences, which I believe he was trying to do. There are alternatives to the breath test open to a defendant and many prefer to take their choice and risk its consequences in a court hearing.

• It's also legal for an officer to remove a defendant to another station, if conditions warrant it, providing it is not at an unreasonable distance from the first one or from where the arrest took place.

• Nowhere in your explanation could I find anything relating to an actual arrest for DWI. If there were none, then it was within his duty to permit the driver to return home for the bond money.

These are my conclusions based on the information you sent me. But let me reiterate. If your friends, who are the only ones who know the facts as they occurred, feel that they were mistreated, they may complain to the police officers' superiors.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Fibers what's needed with diverticulosis

I have diverticulosis or pockets of the colon. Eating roughage hurts and cramps my colon with gas, yet I know I must have fiberous foods. On the other hand, I am told not to eat roughage. I do suffer more when I eat raw fruits and vegetables. Could you give me an idea of what to eat for roughage that would not cause discomfort? Is there anything better to take than Metamusil for my condition?

The proponents of fiber for the diet believe that it will relieve many of the problems in diverticulosis. The idea is that those pockets of the colon are really a complication of a spastic or over contracted colon associated with inadequate bulk in the diet.

The word roughage is not a good word for the type of food you really need. What you need in your diet is "softage." The best source of bulk in food really is the cereal fiber found in bran or the husk of wheat. This is superior to the amount of fiber you'll get in either fruits or vegetables and since those bother you, you should try cereal fiber.

Among the readily available prepared cereals that you can get from the supermarket to satisfy your problem are Kellogg's All-Bran, Bran Buds and Nabisco Bran. If you will eat one ounce (about one teacup dry measure) of any one of these a day, you will get enough "softage" to obtain whatever benefits you might expect from this procedure. In case you don't like any of those, you can use two ounces of Bran Flakes or Raisin Bran. Use two ounces of these a day because they don't contain as much cereal fiber.

Cereal fiber is not roughage. As soon as it is moist, as would happen in the stomach, it swells and becomes soft, not greatly different from the consistency you might see in cooked oatmeal. It won't irritate the digestive tract.

You may have an increased amount of gas during the first three weeks of using these foods. If you have too much, cut down on the amount you are using and gradually increase it. If you do well on this program, you can then add other whole wheat products to your dietary plan, including whole wheat bread as opposed to the white flour types. In general try to increase your cereal fiber. For information on Diverticulosis send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 5-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

What causes mastoid trouble? When my daughter was about 1 year old she had it and had an operation. She seems to think it was caused by something I gave her. It bothers me.

Most mastoid trouble is caused by an infection. That does not mean an infection that your daughter would have gotten from you. Mastoid infections were common complications of ear infections and the types of infections we classified as respiratory infections in years past. We don't see them much anymore because antibiotics eliminate most of the bacterial infections that would cause mastoiditis. You can be fairly certain that your daughter's problem was a complication of an infection that she developed as a child totally unrelated to anything that you might have done or anything she may have gotten from you.

Reader says meringue absolutely foolproof

Dear Dorothy: I tried a new recipe for meringue and haven't had a failure since. There is one extra step, but it's still easy to make. Mix one tablespoon cornstarch and two tablespoons sugar with one-half cup of water. Cook until clear; then set aside. Add a dash of salt to three egg whites and whip until foamy and standing in soft peaks. Add cornstarch mixture and continue beating until creamy. Add gradually six to eight tablespoons of sugar (depending on taste) beating until very creamy and standing in firm peaks. Pile on top of pie, making sure edges are sealed. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until golden brown. The meringue will puff up during baking and will settle a bit after cooking. Cream of tartar is not included in this recipe. It is absolutely foolproof — my meringue never wilts or loses shape. —Charlotte Dole

Dear Dorothy: We've got a terrible odor in our house. We've tried airing, with no success. Before we moved in, a family with children lived in it. Might this play some role? —Ray Storey

I doubt it. There could be a dead animal somewhere in the walls, moisture stagnating somewhere or a dozen other possibilities. Call in a contractor to check the house out thoroughly. Meantime, there are several good chemicals made for this problem — one drop will take care of an odor in a room for 24 hours.

Dear Dorothy: May the "voice of experience" speak to your readers? If anyone spills grease on the kitchen floor, wiping with a damp cloth is totally inadequate. It will be slick enough to make you sail across the floor on your bottom, as I did. Take time to sponge with soap or detergent, rinse and dry. —Katherine Giblin.

Look Younger For Springtime

Spring is the season when your spirits lift as you look forward to pleasant weather after a long, dreary winter. But springtime, with its sudden wind gusts and rapid changes of temperature can be hard on your skin, drying it so you can look older than you'd like. You can look older than necessary as early as your twenties, you know. Nature's own supply of moisture and oil has begun to slow down by then, so your skin becomes dryer and its radiant youthful appearance may start to slip away.

The past winter probably hasn't helped either. Look what you've put your skin through! You've gone between icy outdoor weather and drying indoor heat over and over again. That's like taking your face through all the climates of the world day after day. An honest look in your mirror will show you what winter has done to your skin.

Happily, you can begin to look your youngest for springtime almost before the first crocuses bloom. Join the younger-looking women of all ages from many parts of the world who share the secret of a remarkable beauty fluid that helps every woman look her youngest.

This unique beauty fluid, discovered by beauty connoisseurs, is known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion. The remarkable fluid works with nature in a mysterious way to ease away skin dryness so you can look just as young as you can.

Oil of Olay acts like your own natural moisture to work on dryness. Pure moisture and tropical oils penetrate your skin's surface deeply and astonishingly quickly, with never a greasy afterfeel. You'll see your skin grow softer and smoother almost the moment you soothe on the skin-loving liquid.

Oil of Olay, faithfully every morning, under makeup or to give your skin a moist environment. Again, faithfully, every night.

You'll find Oil of Olay at your drugstore. You may get the beautiful feeling that your skin is living in an ideal moisty, misty eternal spring.

Spring Beauty Secret

As the weather improves, you'll be more on the go. Be sure that Oil of Olay® travels with you everywhere, in your purse or suitcase.

End talks on Panama Canal Treaty, Crane asks Ford

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has called on President Ford to break off negotiations on the Panama Canal Treaty, calling it a "negotiated giveaway" for the canal.

Crane, who is chairman of the Illinois Citizens for Reagan and a supporter of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's campaign against Ford, said the negotiations on the canal should be stopped because "the rights to the canal and Canal Zone have been bought and paid for."

Reagan has also called for an end to the Panama negotiations being conducted by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. The negotiations are designed to rewrite the U.S. treaty with Panama to give Panama jurisdiction over the canal zone.

Nuclear hearings urged

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva said this week he wants the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to hold public hearings before allowing nuclear materials to be shipped to other countries.

Mikva and 53 other members of Congress called on NRC Chairman William Anders to hold full-scale hearings like those required for operating nuclear power plants in the U.S. on shipments overseas.

He said the hearings are needed on the pending export to India of 40,000 pounds of enriched uranium. The uranium could be used in a power plant or could be used to make nuclear weapons.

"There is no excuse for NRC to do any less extensive analysis prior to the granting of a license to export special nuclear material than it does for any portion of the fuel cycle here in the U.S.," Mikva said.

Crane, Mikva poles apart

The two Northwest suburban congressmen received exactly opposite rankings in the National Security Voting Index released recently by the American Security Council.

The ratings were based on votes in favor of developing the B-1 bomber, against disclosing the Central Intelligence Agency budget, against cuts in the defense budget and votes on seven other similar issues.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, received a rating of 100 per cent. U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, received a zero rating.

In the ratings for the U.S. Senate, also on defense and new weapons issues, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevensonn D-Ill., received a zero rating and U.S. Sen. Charles Percy received a favorable rating of 33 per cent.

Political briefs

Smith criticizes Regner

Michael T. Smith, Democratic candidate for state senator from the Third Legislative District, has charged his opponent, State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, of "ignoring the wishes of a great majority of his constituents by refusing to endorse the political honesty initiative."

Smith said more than 20,000 persons in the district have signed petitions supporting the three Constitutional amendments proposed in the initiative. He said he is working with the Coalition for Political Honesty to collect the signatures to put the amendments on the November ballot.

The initiative would prevent legislators from drawing their annual salary in advance, would outlaw double dipping and would strengthen rules against conflict of interest.

Bill to cut vets' red tape

State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has introduced legislation in the Illinois General Assembly to allow veterans of World War II and the Korean War to receive state compensation without special legislation.

The measure would allow the Illinois Dept. of Veterans Affairs to pay the bonus provided for the veteran if it determines the claim is valid.

Currently, a separate bill must be passed for each case before a veteran's claim can be considered by the department.

Crane offers assistance

Staff members representing U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, will have office hours in the Mount Prospect Village Hall Thursday, April 29, to aid persons who may be having trouble with federal agencies.

The staff will be in the village hall from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and will also open Crane's district office, 1450 S. New Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights, from 7 to 9 p.m. that day.

Frank asks equal time

Edwin L. Frank, Democratic candidate running against U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has asked for equal time from WBBM-TV Channel 2 because of a recent appearance by Crane on the station's news program.

Frank said Crane was interviewed on legislation he is sponsoring in Congress and said the interview was "not news and is campaigning" because the legislation had been pending for more than a year.

Before the March 16 primary, Frank was granted time by WBBM's show "Common Ground" after a Drane appearance on the station.

Skinner seeks RTA vote

State Rep. Cal Skinner Jr., R-Crystal Lake, has introduced legislation calling for a new referendum on the Regional Transportation Authority as part of the November election.

Skinner, an outspoken RTA foe, said one provision of the referendum would allow the RTA board to fire Chairman Milton Pikarsky. He said, "I think the RTA board chairman should be more like a city manager. I think Pikarsky should serve at the pleasure of the board."

Presently, Pikarsky can be fired with six votes by RTA board members, but he must be fired for cause.

Skinner also said his bill would allocate all the money coming into the RTA from state and federal sources by population among the outlying RTA counties, the Cook County suburbs and Chicago. He said, "I'd let the outlying county boards spend their shares pretty much as they wished."

Nimrod offers senior's aid

Senior citizens who want help filling out applications for property tax relief can get it from the Park Ridge office of State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, Nimrod has announced.

The office, at 26 Main St., Park Ridge, will be open from 9 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 4 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. An aide will be on duty to help with the applications.

Homeowners age 65 or older as of Jan. 1, 1976, are eligible for a $1,500 exemption on their real estate assessment under the Homestead Exemption Act. The saving amounts to $115 each year.

Aid for U.S. debt asked

U.S. Rep. Henry Hyde, R-6th, has introduced legislation to allow taxpayers to designate $1 of their income tax to reduce the national debt.

Hyde said the legislation would add the national debt checkoff to the present one which allows persons to designate $1 for the federal campaign financing for presidential campaigns.

Hyde said, "I am not suffering under any illusion that the national debt is going to be wiped out through this method." However, he said the checkoff would give taxpayers an alternative to the political campaign checkoff, which ha raised $100 million in the last ofur years.

Hyde said the national debt is $596.9 billion.

Chicago Cubs feature fans who revel in adversity

Art Mugalian
Staff Sportswriter

If you saw the Cubs lose 18-16 to Mike Schmidt on Saturday after they took a 12-1 lead — and if you still don't believe it — you'll be pleased to know that the Cubs tied a National League record for rolling over and playing dead.

It's a record no team wishes to approach — few of them get the opportunity. And in true Cub fashion, the team tried to kick away its place in immortality with a two-run rally in the ninth.

But, when it had ended, after Schmidt had homered for an unbelievable (but not for Cub fans) fourth time in a row, the truly remarkable record belonged to the Cubs.

"That ties the National League record for the largest lead ever blown in a regular-season game," said my friend Joe, who showed me the entry in the book just to prove he was right — or that he wasn't making it up.

Sure enough, the record was 11, New York Giants, 1952.

It was good to know that we (the Cubs and I) hadn't wasted our time on a game completely devoid of historical significance. Only the 1925 Cleveland Indians, who in one game led 15-3 going into the bottom of the eighth, blew a bigger major league lead.

My friend Joe is a comfort on occasions such as Saturday's. He always finds the silver lining.

Like last year, when the Cubs lost to Pittsburgh, 22-0, Joe was on the phone with two out in the ninth. "If the Cubs don't score," he said almost breathlessly, "it will be the largest shutout in modern baseball history."

Well, we baseball fans live for games like that. So do football fans.

But no upstanding Cub fan wants to see his team lose, not 22-0, and certainly not 18-16 after Jack Brickhouse had already pronounced the game a laughter.

Which raises a very interesting and disturbing question, which may infuriate some Cub fans, but which I hope will start many others to thinking.

Namely, what has gotten into Cub fans lately?

There is a growing tendency to regard the Cubs as a somewhat klutzy, vaguely amusing group of vagabonds who can do nothing right — except suffer ignominious defeat. The team is steadily becoming a national institution of losing.

This is okay. Other worthy teams in baseball history have earned their merit badge of mediocrity or worse — the St. Louis Browns, the Athletics, the old Washington Nationals. Even the White Sox were once good losers.

Each major league town should periodically be forced to contend with a last-place baseball team. It's good for the moral character of the community. It teaches humility and, especially, forgiveness. To err is human; to firgive three errs in the ninth, divine.

The Cubs could hold a seminar on forgiveness, of course.

But the point of all this, and what is most disturbing, is that most Cub fans do more than forgive. They do more than forget (which is also divine).

Cub fans seem to welcome adversity. They revel in it. And they bring it down on themselves. A Cub fan challenges his favorite team: "It's such a beautiful day — what can you do to ruin it?"

No Cub fan, I'm sure, wants to see his team lose. No Cub fan has ever been accused of throwing a game for profit. Cub fans don't even cheer for the other pitcher's no-hitter.

But no fan of baseball can rival a Cub fan's capacity for self-inflicted pain. Call it patience, if you will. Or stupidity, if you like.

The experts used to say the Cubs would never win a pennant because the players, despite their talents, didn't know what it was like to win. Billy Williams and Ken Holtzman (and Darold Knowles in reverse) disproved that theory.

I'm afraid the answer is discouragingly simple. The Cubs are losers because they play poor baseball and have done so for 30 years; the fans are losers only because they want to be.

I never knew a Cub fan who was comfortable in first place. But give him a sunny afternoon, a seat in the bleachers, and an 11-run lead and he'll be happy.

Fremd triumphs in only game to escape elements

Steve Peters survived last-inning fireworks by Rolling Meadows and contributed a double, stolen base and run batted in to his cause Tuesday as Fremd tapped the Mustangs, 5-2.

The verdict was the only one of the day as morning rains washed out five other scheduled Mid-Suburban contests. The triumph was the Vikings' third of the league season against one loss while Meadows is still winless at 0-3.

Peters, a portly portsider, blended a mixture of tailing fastballs with tantalizing, off-speed, breaking pitches that kept Meadows guessing through six innings.

But with one out in the seventh, the Mustangs came to life as Paul Marsillo walked and swiped second. A strikeout later, Dennis Drolet drilled a towering opposite-field homer that easily cleared the rightfield fence.

Dave Bell kept the inning alive by singling in the hole between short and third and Mike Bramlett squeezed a Texas-league single among three Fremd fielders to put the tying runs aboard.

Peters, who walked four during the overcast afternoon, saved his 13th strikeout for the final out of the game to preserve the bone-chilling triumph.

Fremd took advantage of nine walks and two hit batsmen by three Meadows hurlers and added five hits to the offense to jump out to a 4-0 cushion.

After squandering scoring opportunities in the first and second innings and stranding five runners, the Vikings broke through in the third on Peters' double, an infield single by Ron Leahy and a two-run base hit by Chris Pethley to right.

Fremd doubled its 2-0 lead in the fourth when Mike Mertes drew a leadoff walk and big Dale Hallberg was nicked in the arm by a pitch.

The bases turned green with Viking runners when Bill Friskics reached on an outless fielder's choice. Matt Fox delivered a run-scoring single to left and Carl DePaolis a sacrifice fly to right to thrust Fremd into command, 4-0.

The Vikings capped their scoring in the sixth when Hallberg reached on a fielder's choice pinch-pinch-runner Fletcher pilfered second and strolled the rest of the scoring route on successive walks to Fox DePaolis and Peters.

Chain O' Lakes guide is sold out

Jim Cook's Chain O' Lakes Fishing Guide is a sellout. The 26-page kit was made available free of charge to Herald readers who stopped by Paddock Publications offices in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Libertyville.

The overwhelming response completely exhausted limited quantities of the colorful guide in just four days.

Vital new clubs in Floyd's bag

Jim Murray

When, in 1963, at the age of 20, Raymond Floyd became the youngest golfer ever to win a PGA tournament, people thought it would be just a matter of time before he would be winning the Masters or the PGA. It wouldn't have surprised them to be told that one day he would break the 54-hole record at Augusta and tie the 72-hole record of 17 under par there.

What would have surprised them would have been to be told that it wouldn't happen till 1976.

No one hit the ball with more strength and stylishness than Raymond Floyd. And no one cared less.

Raymond was one of that happy caravan of golfers who whiled away their weekends on golf courses to get the money for their more serious pursuits in between. In Raymond's case, this included major league baseball, minor league pool, any kind of horse racing, card games, dance halls or crap tables. Raymond was a night guy in a daytime game. Life was just a gigantic 19th hole. He palled around with most of the ne'er-do-wells on the tour — and some off

Raymond thought he was having a swell time, but lots of people thought he should apologize to history because he hadn't done right by it. So far as the muse of golf was concerned, he wouldn't come home nights, he was short with the rent money, and stayed out with the boys generally while she sat by the fire.

Raymond won just enough tournaments to make his fans upset that he didn't win more. He seemed to have no more regard for the game than any other 9-to-5 worker. He spent four hours a day, four days a week at his game and not much more — and the rest of his time on the Chicago Cubs. Or his race horses. Or other fillies. Raymond needed money, but not for long. Whenever things got tight, he could just take down the clubs — and go out and finish 10th someplace.

He was standing on the 17th green at the British Open at Lytham & St. Anne's in the third round there in 1969 with a 7-foot putt for a birdie. Raymond was well in the hunt at the time, but he fidgeted as he waited to putt. Suddenly, he spied an American sportswriter in the gallery. Raymond hurried over with a need for some urgent information. He didn't want to know what Nicklaus was shooting, or how many under par Jacklin, the leader, was at the time. Raymond wanted more serious briefing. "Say," he asked anxiously, "can you tell me how the Cubs did yesterday?"

That incident tells you all you need to know about Raymond Floyd circa 1969. Ben Hogan, in that situation, wouldn't have to know how a world war was doing.

For his part, Raymond could never understand why everybody didn't mind his own business. "I don't care if you don't want to be President," Raymond would chide journalists or patrons who scolded him.

But in 1974, Raymond finally saw something he wanted more than a British Open, or even a Kentucky Derby, or a National League pennant — or even four aces. Maria. So far as Raymond was concerned that was his first major championship, even though he had won the PGA by then, probably because it didn't interfere with his otherwise busy social schedule that year.

So far as anyone could tell, the married Raymond Floyd swings the same (on the course, that is), putts the same and engineers his way around the golf course the same as the old Raymond Floyd. The difference is, he lets the Cubs cheer for themselves nowadays. If he gets a call on the course, it's not from his bookie any more, it's probably from his obstetrician.

You see, Raymond took off the tour for the whole California swing. It was not that the ponies were running at Hialeah, or the Cubs required his presence at training camp — Raymond was simply baby-sitting. His wife was momentarily expecting her second child — and Raymond didn't want to turn his first-born, only 19 months old, over to strangers.

The new Raymond Floyd had two $100,000-plus seasons in a row. He was in a playoff for the San Diego Open, won the Kemper Open going away, and then won the Masters wire-to-wire. And all this since September, 1974 when he got married.

"The way I feel now, I'd love to go back and do those year over again," ruefully admits Raymond. "But you got to remember I came up in the era of Joe Namath, and we thought those things were called for. I guess you could say I wasn't dedicated — certainly not to golf — and that I wasn't responsible, except up to a point."

You don't shoot 271 in the Masters and win two major championships unless you are a considerable golfer. But you also don't do it until you start caring about Raymond Floyd. Raymond Floyd Jr. that is. Also, Robert Floyd, aged 3 months. And their mother.

For Raymond, those three new clubs in the bag made all the difference.

Carroll highlight in 5-4 Sox loss

Clay Carroll

From Herald Wire Services

NEW YORK — The clouds of defeat had a silver lining here Tuesday for the White Sox.

For although the Sox lost a 5-4 decision to the Yankees and Bart Johnson was bombed off the mound after only two innings, Clay Carroll continued to be perfect in relief.

The soon-to-be 35-year-old righthander, obtained from Cincinnati in the offseason, came in to pitch six perfect innings. Carroll has yet to give up a run, either in spring training or in two regular season appearances.

Both starters were long gone by the time the game was half over. Johnson left after facing three batters in the third. He gave up all five Yankee runs in two innings. And Yankee starter Doc Ellis was also knocked out early, going out after pitching 2 1/3 innings. He was charged with all four Sox runs.

The game was tied 3-3 in the third when Ellis departed in favor of Tippy Martinez. Martinez gave up a single to Brian Downing, which knocked in Jim Spencer from second and put the pale hose ahead 4-3.

Martinez got out of the frame with a double play that ended the inning. From there on, he gave up only two singles before tiring in the eighth with two on and two out.

Dick Tidrow then came on to end that Sox rally with one pitch — a double play ball. Sparkly Lyle earned the save for New York by working the ninth after Bucky Dent led off with a single.

The Yankees got their winning runs in the bottom of the third when Roy White beat out a bunt for a single, stole second and scored on a single by Thurman Munson. Munson then stole second and scored on Chris Chambliss' line drive single to right.

New York got its first three runs in the second on a single by Oscar Gamble, a walk, a double by Lou Piniella and sacrifice flies by Willie Randolph and Jim Mason. Pat Kelly led off the third with a home run for Chicago and two more runs scored on a double by Ralph Garr, a single by Jorge Orta, who had four hits, and a double by Spencer before Martinez came on.

Back in Chicago, wet weather postponed the Cubs-Montreal game, which will be replayed at a later date.

Flyers, Islanders, Bruins post wins

Don Saleski scored a hat trick, including two goals in a 1:33 span of the second period, to lead the hosting Philadelphia Flyers to a 7-1 rout of the Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night and a 3-2 advantage in their Stanley Cup quarterfinal playoff series.

Boston and New York also took 3-2 edges in their series.

Saleski's first goal, which came with teammate Dave Schultz in the penalty box, was a breakaway on Toronto goalie Wayne Thomas at 10:04 of the second period after Maple Leafs defenseman Borje Salming fell at his own blue line.

Saleski scored again at 11:37 when he took a slant pass from Bob Kelly near the goal mouth and deflected the puck into the net. In the third period with the Flyers leading 4-1 Saleski skated in front of the goal as Orest Kendrachuk took a shot on Thomas and slapped it past the Toronto netminder.

Between Saleski's first and second goals, the two teams traded scores on goals by the Leafs' Bob Neely and the Flyers' Gary Dornhoefer.

Reggie Leach, the National Hockey League's leading goal scorer this season, added two more in the third period as the Flyers pulled away and set the stage for Thursday night's game in Toronto.

Bob Schmautz scored one goal and set up two others with nifty passes to pace the Boston Bruins to a 7-1 win over the visiting Los Angeles Kings.

Boston can wrap up the best-of-seven series Thursday night with a win in Los Angeles.

Brad Park added a pair of goals after the outcome was decided, one a short-handed effort. Ken Hodge and Jean Ratelle had power play scores in the four-goal second period and Don Marcotte and Terry O'Reilly had the other Boston goals.

Defenseman Bert Marshall scored his first goal of the playoffs and the season with 19 seconds left — a 60-foot screen shot from the point — to give the New York Islanders a 4-3 victory over the hosting Buffalo Sabres.

The Islanders can wrap up the series Thursday in New York.

Marshall, who failed to score in 71 regular season games and six playoff games and has only scored 12 goals in his entire NHL career, beat Buffalo goalie Gerry Desjardins after the Islanders had won a faceoff in the Buffalo end.

Campbell deplores assault charge

National Hockey League Commissioner Clarence Campbell said Tuesday night he deplored the action of Ontario law enforcement officials in charging three Philadelphia Flyers players with assault for their actions in last week's Stanley Cup playoff game with Toronto. Campbell acknowledged Ontario Attorney General Roy McMurtry "is doing what he thinks is right" in charging Philadelphia players Joe Watson, Don Saleski and Mel Bridgman with assault, but that he doesn't agree with the action taken.. McMurtry, a frequent critic of hockey violence, charged Watson and Saleski with common assault and possession of a dangerous weapon — a hockey stick — in connection with a penalty box scuffle among players, fans and police. Watson was also charged with assaulting a police officer. Bridgman was charged with assault to commit bodily harm in a fight with Toronto's Borje Salming.

Mets, Cards in baseball brawl

A beanball war touched off a dugout-clearing incident in Tuesday night's game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Mets. After the Mets jumped off to a 6-0 lead after two innings, Cardinal starter Lynn McGlothen hit Del Unser, who had homered, in the shoulder. McGlothen led off the bottom of the third and was hit by Jon Matlack.

Bud Harrelson, who wasn't in the Mets' lineup, charged the umpire and was thrown out. After Matlack was hit in the fourth, McGlothen was tossed out, but not before Dave Kingman led a charge of Met players from the dugout. After the free-swinging melee, Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst was also ejected. The Mets won the "war" by a score of 8-0.

Jobless runner wins marathon

Marty Sudzina, 24, an unemployed steel worker from Duquesne, Pa., Tuesday won the 26-mile Philadelphia marathon that is the initial event of this weekend's 82nd annual Penn Relays.

Despite temperatures in the high 80's and a blazing sun, Sudzina won with a time of 2:28:19.8, just over a minute longer than the record set in last year's event. Over 190 runners were entered in the race but only 133 started in the hot weather and only 48 finished.

While the world waited for the first man and the first woman to cross the finish line of the 80th Boston Marathon finish line the day before, several interesting records were being set.

It cost $3 a minute for 4½ hours for a telephone connection between San Jose and the finish line at the Prudential Center. Residents of Costa Rica were keeping an ear open to see how Rafael Perez, who led the 1971 BAA by a mile but dropped out with a torn ligament, did this year. He finished 13th with a time of 2:28.15.

Indy qualifying list reaches 70

The Indianapolis Speedway said Tuesday 70 cars, nine more than last year, will challenge for the 33 starting places in the "500" May 30.

The Speedway announced five more entries from two teams, all postmarked prior to the April 15 midnight deadline. They came from Penske Racing Inc. of Michigan and the Vels-Parnelli Jones team of California.

Roger Penske listed Tom Sneva, Spokane, Wash., who was involved in a spectacular crash in last year's race, as driver of one of his three machines. Mario Andretti, the 1969 winner, was expected to drive one of the other cars.

Formco captures third Paddock Classic title

Formco Metal Products breezed to its third successive Paddock Classic Traveling League championship Saturday at Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows by winning both halves of the 1975-76 season and thus making the anticipated title rolloff scheduled for this week a moot point.

Formco captured the opening half of the schedule with 68 points, barely defeating Beverly Lanes' 67 and Oost Produce's 66 in a blanket finish.

But the second half was completely one-sided as Formco rolled up an impressive 91.5 points to easily outdistance runnerup Teddy's Liquors with 63.

Mike Heffner paced a sweep over Teddy's in the position round with a league-high 638 series off consistent games of 201, 217 and 220. Barry Stjernberg added 587-223, Bob Kula 586-232, Mike Shoop, 565-208 and anchorman Fred Hansen a steady 560 series.

Don Sawicki's 556 total led Teddy's, but Formco's dominating games of 1002, 999 and 935 was too much to overcome.

Notching the evening's other seven-point sweep was Dick McFeely Pontiac which strung games of 977, 958 and 929 to defeat Beverly Lanes. Jim Reupert's 609 series and robust 246 game, coupled with teammate Ray Lofthouse's 598 series highlighted the winner's performance.

Ken Miller registered a 257 opener toward a 632 series and Bob Green was right behind with 629 to spearhead Beverly's attack.

Oost Produce earned third place in the final standings with a 4-3 decision over Des Plaines Ace Hardware as Terry Nichols and John Giovannelli matched identical 597 series for the victors. Don Christensen's 605 and a 599 by Joe Simonis helped Ace to its three-point spree.

In the final match, Pickwich House, edged Buffalo Grove Striker Lanes, 4-3, as Kelly Koeller's 580 and a 574 by Ken Schroeder paced the winners. Rich Wagner's 553 set headlined the action for Striker.

Les Zikes of Beverly Lanes captured the league's average derby with a 214 mark for 30 games. Formco's Hansen earned both the high game honor with 290 and the high series award with a blistering 815.
